NAZIS ON GUARD AS FLEEING JEWS SEARCHED

The picture above was taken during the rush of Jews to friendly countries when the Nazi campaign against them was started in Germany. It shows a group being searched at a border point, to prevent their carrying money out of Germany, while Nazi guards, armed with rifles, looked on. Since then few Jews have been able to depart from Germany by railway or other ordinary method of travel as the government is enforcing an order under which no one may leave the country unless he has a police permit. Despite this regulation numbers have stolen across the border into Denmark, Holland and Belgium, but they left their possessions in Germany.

Lieut. Baillie-Stewart Dishonorably Discharged From Army and Sentenced to Penal Servitude For Selling Military Secrets to Germans

Canadian Press

London, April 13.—Lieut. Norman Baillie-Stewart, convicted by a courtmartial of violation of the Official Secrets Act, was sentenced to-day to dishonorable discharge from the army and to five years' penal servitude.

The young officer of the Seaforth Highlanders, member of a distinguished military family, was charged with having sold military secrets to a foreign nation.

During the courtmartial the prosecution charged he had "sold his country for £50 or more," receiving the money in the mail from Otto Waldemar Obst of Berlin.

His defence was that the money had come from a German girl named Marie Louise whom he had met while he was on leave in Germany. He denied betraying secrets of the army.

The King himself confirmed the findings of the court, but Lieut. Baillie-Stewart will not be "drummed out" of the army, for that old ceremony no longer is observed in such cases as this.

He will serve his sentence in a civil prison.

Lieut. Norman Baillie-Stewart was charged on ten counts with selling military secrets to a foreign agent.

At the courtmartial hearing, which followed sixty-seven days' detention in the Tower of London, the prosecution produced a letter showing he had received £90 from a woman named Marie Louise in Berlin. The prosecutors contended this was in payment for the revelation of various army secrets.

At the conclusion of the courtmartial a verdict was returned acquitting Lieut. Baillie-Stewart of three of the lesser charges, but with no announcement made concerning the remaining seven.

Under military custom, however, it was made clear the findings on these seven charges would not be "not guilty." Otherwise the would have been made public.

The entire case then was referred to higher military authorities for review, in keeping with army usage.

COMMONS TO TAKE HOLIDAY

Ottawa, April 13.—After a day devoted to grappling with details of the railway bill the Commons this evening will adjourn for a long week-end. The Easter recess will start to-night and the House will not meet again until Tuesday.

The Senate has already started its Easter holiday, which will last until April 25. Long adjournment of the upper house was due to decision it would not be necessary to get the new shipping bill through parliament this session.

COVER CHARGE WILL BEAT TAX

Can Bring Meals Under Fifty Cents By Taking Advantage of Loophole

Flowers and cover charges are not considered part of a meal and do not come under the new tax on meals costing 50 cents or over, according to Hon. J. W. Jones, Minister of Finance, this morning.

A loophole is seen in the exemption of cover charges, as many private hotels and clubs with dining rooms for their members are now in a position to put on a cover charge of 15 to 25 cents, bringing the meal under the stipiated minimum.

The same loophole is open to hostesses giving tea parties to their friends at large hotels who may arrange for a stiff cover charge to escape the tax.

FAIR WAGES AND NO DOLE

Policy Enunciated By Liberal Leader at West Vancouver Meeting

Billions Found For War—Start War on Poverty, Says Pattullo

Canadian Press

West Vancouver, April 13.—Creation of a national economic council and a provincial organization of a similar nature, abolition of the "dole" system and institution of a public works programme were enunciated as planks of the Liberal Party platform by T. D. Pattullo, M.P.P., in addressing a gathering which filled Dundarave Hall here yesterday evening.

Mr. Pattullo, who spoke under the auspices of the West Vancouver Liberal Association, criticized the Tolmie administration briefly, but remarked that "it is no use whipping a dead horse."

Arguments of union advocates were unsound, he said.

"I had no mandate from the Liberal Party to enter any coalition," he declared when speaking of Premier Tolmie's overtures.

"Even if I had gone into the Tolmie Government I would have been out already," added the Liberal leader, referring to differences between Liberal policies and those of the administration.

Mr. Pattullo expressed himself as strongly opposed to the present system of unemployment relief in British Columbia, which he termed a "dole." Large sums of money were being spent without receiving work in return and as a consequence the morale of men forced to accept such assistance had become seriously affected, he asserted.

PUBLIC WORKS

He advocated an ambitious public works policy to remedy unemployment.

"If this country became involved in a war billions of dollars would be spent," he observed. "Why not spend $400,000,000 for a war on poverty, give fair wages, increase the purchasing power of the people and generally stimulate business?"

In this connection the Liberal leader declared he was not an inflationist, but did believe in utilizing national credit in such an emergency.

The speaker contended the economic councils he proposed for the Dominion and provinces would be of inestimable value to governments.

It would be necessary, he asserted, for the council to be composed of men with expert knowledge of health, education, engineering, economy, finance and labor. It should be a non-partisan board whose duty would be to advise the government on various policies, the government assuming responsibility for acting on the board's advice.

NIAGARA POLICE DISPERSE MOB

Canadian Press

Niagara Falls, Ont., April 13.—Some 300 unemployed men who marched on the offices of The Niagara Falls Review, a local newspaper, to-day dispersed when they saw every member of the city police department stationed about the building, headed by Chief John Dart.

Chief Dart said he had been tipped off that the unemployed planned to stage a demonstration because of dissatisfaction with the administration of relief under James M. Cown, editor of the newspaper, who is chairman of the city relief association.

ACTORS BATTLE WITH EXTRA MEN

Associated Press

Biot, France, April 13. — A moving picture set in this Riviera village was under guard to-day after some 1,500 clashing extras and unemployed actors had turned a staged street battle into a real one.

Four participants were taken to a hospital and a score more were slightly hurt.

While 1,200 amateur extras were enacting the street battle yesterday from a film production on Victor Hugo's "Les Miserables," some 300 jobless professionals tried to tear down the set which represented the old quarters of Paris.

Sensational Evidence At Hearing of Six Britishers In Russian Capital City

NEARLY QUARTER OF TAXES PAID

Close to 25 per cent of the city's total tax levy has been paid into the treasury coffers to date under the prepayment scheme, according to figures released this morning. Including yesterday's collections, the total payments are $407,887.10, which have earned $16,395.97 in interest for those who have met their bills early. By comparison with last year, a large increase is shown. The daily collection is $53,000 or about 15 per cent greater and is more than a month and a half ahead of last year, as a similar total was not reached until the end of May.

ENGINEERS NOT BRITISH SPIES

Simon Tells Commons Men on Trial in Moscow Not Paid By Government

Canadian Press and Associated Press

London, April 13.—In connection with the trial now in progress in Moscow, Sir John Simon, Secretary for Foreign Affairs, to-day made this statement in the House of Commons:

"In view of the nature of charges made against six British subjects at the trial in Moscow, I desire to make a specific statement.

"None of these men ever has been employed directly or indirectly in any connection with any branch of our intelligence service. None of them ever has supplied any information to any such branch. None of them ever has been paid or promised any reward for such information, nor ever has been supplied with any money to obtain it. None of them ever has made any report to us on behalf of our intelligence service.

"All these statements are equally true of the Metropolitan-Vickers Company itself. That company has not and never has had any connection whatever with our intelligence service."

EMBARGO BILL SIGNED

London, April 13.—The Commons was notified to-day the King had signed the measure whereby the government can place an embargo on all Russian goods.

This measure was a direct outgrown of the arrest of the six Metropolitan-Vickers Electrical Company employees who are undergoing trial in Moscow. The government said it would not use the embargo unless it was found necessary to assure the British engineers of a fair trial.

At the same time Rt. Hon. Walter Runciman, president of the Board of Trade, when questioned by Labor members concerning Russian trade, evoked cheers by replying:

"I can say nothing whatever at the present moment regarding our relations with Russia."

"I am Not Actually Guilty," Says W. H. Macdonald, Who Yesterday Was Only One of Group From England to Plead Guilty

Hearing of Sabotage Charges Discloses Alleged Statement of Each Britisher to Soviet Police Read to Others During Inquiry

Canadian Press

Moscow, April 13.—L. C. Thornton, one of the six Englishmen accused of sabotage and espionage by the Russian secret service police, denied all allegations against him as the trial was resumed this evening.

Earlier in the day, W. H. Macdonald, the only one of the six accused to plead guilty, repudiated his plea and declared he had pleaded guilty because of the methods of questioning employed by the secret police.

Macdonald spoke in English and in a loud, firm voice.

He declared he had not told V. A. Sokoloff, a Russian co-defendant who has pleaded guily, and who was assistant director of the Zlatoust power plant, to commit sabotage of Russian machinery at electrical plants.

"Why did you say so in the indictment?" asked the prosecutor, Andrej Vishinsky.

"CONVENIENT" THEN

"I considered it convenient in the circumstances and no translation of my statement was read in my presence. I admitted I was guilty yesterday. I am actually not guilty."

The most profound sensation was caused by Macdonald's testimony, which suddenly turned the tables. The interpreter was frequently called in order to get the exact shades of the meaning of Macdonald's testimony, which momentarily confounded the prosecution.

Standing upright despite his lame left leg, the tall, twenty-eight-year-old engineer denounced in cool and calculated tones the statements concerning him in the indictment, as well as his own statement written while he was held in the Russian police prison, in solitary confinement, for five weeks.

Macdonald declared he had made the incriminating statements at the time of his arrest because of the methods of the Russian secret police. He said they had shown him a statement which was supposed to have been an admission by L. C. Thornton, a co-defendant, that he had used Macdonald to collect information for military and other use in Great Britain.

PAID FOR OVERTIME

Macdonald denied he had paid any money to Sokolov for obtaining information in regard to secret Soviet technical and military plans. He admitted he had paid to Vassili Gusev, director of the Zlatoust plant, and other Russians about $1,500 for overtime, partly from moneys belonging to the Metropolitan-Vickers firm, of which the accused are employees, and partly from his own pocket.

Prosecutor Vishinsky showed Macdonald a statement, written in his own handwriting in prison, to the effect he had received secret information from Sokoloff. He asked why he had written that if he denied it to-day.

Macdonald replied that "under the circumstances," it was "more convenient" to write that testimony.

THORNTON ON STAND

After a twenty-minute adjournment a breeze occurred between Thornton and Vishinsky. Thornton denied all allegations of espionage. He said he knew everything that was to be known from working in the vicinity of the military area near Zlatoust.

Asked why he had given "untrue" evidence before the Soviet secret police officials in prison, Thornton answered: "Because I lost my nerve and the very serious charges against me made a heavy impression on me."

Presiding Judge Ulrich asked Thornton:

"When did your nerve return?"

"At 6 o'clock on the evening of April 4, when I was released on bail," Thornton answered.

The prosecution's cross-examination of Macdonald and Thornton revealed the fact that the alleged evidence of each had been read to the other.

Thornton asserted he was not aware Macdonald was ever engaged in wrecking or espionage, adding that if he had suspected it, "I would have kicked him out."

Bridge Plan Before Vancouver Council

Company Scheme to Build Structure Over First Narrows Is Considered

Canadian Press

Vancouver, April 13.—A scheme for a bridge over the First Narrows (Lions' Gate), entrance to Burrard Inlet, sponsored by British interests was submitted to the Vancouver council this forenoon in a communication from R. P. Stockton.

Th bridge is part of a great plan connected with the beautification of 4,500 acres of West Vancouver land the British financiers purchased from the municipality. Terraces, sweeping roadways and a plaza and golf course are under construction across the narrows and the bridge would link this developmnet with the south shore.

The navigation question does not enter into the discussion with the civic authorities, as that will subsequently be dealt with by the Dominion Government.

John Anderson, representative th Vancouver of the British Pacific Trust Limited of London, England, a syndicate of eminent British financial men, and R. P. Stockton, solicitor, represented the company at the hearings. The plans submitted were made by Col. C. N. Monsarrat of Monsarrat and Pratley of Montreal.

Among the statements laid before the aldermen were these:

The bridge is to be financed privately.

No bond guarantees or interest guarantees will be asked of any public body.

There will be no promotion offering of shares in British Columbia.

The bridge is to be of the stiffened suspension type with a central span of 1,500 feet.

Clearance above mean high tide will be 200 feet.

Prospect Point will not be disturbed as the southern section will be to the east of and lower than the point.

The approach viaduct on the north side will be 2,400 feet on a gravel embankment, with a maximum height of twenty-five feet.

The viaduct will connect with the Marine Drive a few hundred feet to the east of the Capilano Bridge.

The bridge will have a thirty-six-foot fourlane roadway and one sidewalk of four feet.

AKRON'S COURSE WRONGLY CHOSEN

Lakehurst, N.J., April 13.—Lieut. Charles J. Mortgage Interest Moratorium Asked

Canadian Press

Vancouver, April 13.—A moratorium on mortgage interests of all kinds in excess of 3 per cent per annum on all mortgages made prior to January 1, 1933, is demanded by the Vancouver Apartment House Owners' and Managers' Association in a petition forwarded to Premier Bennett and his cabinet colleagues and to British Columbia members of Parliament at Ottawa.

The petition, endorsed by unanimous resolution at a recent meeting, asks for "immediate legislation or temporary relief."

Reasons for the petition, set out in a preamble, are, in effect:

Apartment blocks are being directly and indirectly taxed to a higher degree than other forms of property:

Decrease in earning power of the renting public makes it impossible for them to pay reasonable rent, resulting in an unusual percentage of vacancies, so that fully 50 per cent of Vancouver apartment buildings are returning less than operating costs, including taxes, insurance and mortgage interest.

DOMINION IS URGED TO CUT OUTLAYS

Canadian Chamber of Commerce States Views in Statement Sent to Federal Cabinet

Canadian Press

Montreal, April 13.—"Disappointment and concern" because the budget now before parliament, as introduced by Hon. E. N. Rhodes, Minister of Finance, "while adding to the already heavy burden of taxation, does not indicate economies have been adopted to the degree necessary to meet the present serious conditions," were expressed to-day in a recommendation forwarded to Ottawa by the national headquarters of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce.

Immediate action to reduce expenditures is urged.

John W. Ross, president of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce, it was stated at headquarters, had canvassed the opinion of business leaders constituting the national board of directors and also the national committee of public finance, in regard to the budget. Forty leading executives, representing business from British Columbia to Nova Scotia, had replied to the president that in their opinion the

The Heimwehr was being prepared for induction into the force if it is established. The Austrian Nazis would have no place, under present plans, in the force.

Co-operation Motto For Washington

MACDONALD TELLS M.P.'S OF HIS HOPES FOR CONFERENCE

Common Efforts For Solution of World's Chief Problems Expected at International Gathering in U.S. Capital

Canadian Press

London, April 13.—Premier Ramsay MacDonald, during a foreign affairs debate in the House of Commons to-day, outlined the objective of his trip to Washington as an attempt to bring the nations of the world closer together, not in alliances, but in spirit, and to secure a co-operative effort for a solution of economic and political problems.

The Premier plans to sail Saturday.

"American policy," the Premier said, "has always been that she will not enter into any European entanglement, and I would not go, nor would I ever go and try to persuade America to do otherwise than to carry out that historic policy.

"The only possible exception would be in the event of a world agreement quite clearly defined regarding an aggressor, America having previously been a party to that agreement."

REMOVAL OF THREATS

Mr. MacDonald declared the world could not be indifferent to "certain threatening influences" active in Europe to-day.

"We must not allow them to obstruct our progress toward disarmament," he said, "but we must consider the conditions and be very careful at the same time as to how these conditions are to operate."

He said he understood his views on the European situation were not inacceptable in other parts of the world and if he could further the spirit of co-operation among nations at Washington he would consider his mission successful.

DEBT QUESTION

Dealing with debts, he declared neither Americans nor Britishers could hide the fact that debt payments had had a very important political effect and a settlement acceptable to both sides would be one of the greatest blessings that could happen.

Mr. Lloyd George, former Premier asked whether any agreement would be entered into at Washington subject to acceptance by the British Cabinet.

Mr. MacDonald replied he proposed to come to no agreements during the four-day talk with Mr. Roosevelt.

"First," he said, "We must sit down together with the Americans and understand each other, and if the whole field of problems can be explored in four days, good will be done."

Continuing comment on debts, the Premier said: "I expect Mr. Roosevelt to talk with the most friendly candor of his own difficulties and I certainly shall talk to Mr. Roosevelt with the most friendly candor of the difficulties that would have to be faced in this country if certain proposals are put to the Commons. Then I think the Cabinet will be in a position to make up its mind how it is proposed to handle the June 15 payment."

Then Mr. MacDonald declared that "there is not a word of truth" in newspaper statements here that an Anglo-American understanding as regards a debt moratorium had been reached.

TO BREAK DOWN BARRIERS

Regarding the World Economic Conference, the Premier agreed with Clement R. Attlee, Labor spokesman, that the world's biggest problem was to end "the mad state of things where men desire work and cannot get it," although if available markets were opened up and the things that blocked them removed, the comfort, peace and happiness of the world would be enormously increased.

"I have always taken that view as the aim of the World Economic Conference," Mr. MacDonald said, "and I am sure Mr. Roosevelt would have no objection at all if I say that he, too, most thoroughly shares that view of the World Economic Conference."

OLD PRUSSIANISM

Sir Austen Chamberlain, former Chancellor of the Exchequer, following Mr. MacDonald, referred to Germany's desire for a revision of the Treaty of Versailles, and asserted this was not the time for revision with Germany in the present state of mind.

"This new spirit of German nationalism is the old Prussianism with an added savagery of racial pride and exclusiveness," he said.

He added he thought the present position of Europe was more threatening to peace than anything since the close of the Great War.

INSTRUCTIONS TO HERRIOT

Paris, April 13.—Former Premier Edouard Herriott, who will represent France in the international conferences with President Roosevelt in Washington, received his government's instructions to-day during a two-hour talk with Premier Daladier.

A brief communique issued by the Premier said the conferees had "examined the different problems on which M. Herriot's mission is charged in giving and gathering information."

Major H. Brown of Vancouver Compares Province to Disabled Craft

Says Public as Much to Blame as Government For Reckless Expenditures

Special to The Times

Courtenay, April 13. — Major Harold Brown, of Vancouver, at the annual Board of Trade dinner here, compared British Columbia to a craft drifting hopelessly in mid-stream. He laid no blame on any specific institution, governmental or otherwise, for the present condition of financial and business chaos, but charged it to the abuses of the system.

The provincial minister of finance, he considered, was sincerely trying to meet the situation, and the Hon. R. W. Bruhn came in for a meed of praise for his advocated policy of having public works undertaken by competitive tender. The use and abuse of party funds came under fire. He considered the public as much to blame as the government for reckless expenditures which had saddled the province with a public debt of $167,000,000. Under present social conditions, Major Brown could see no prospect of security, and only in the improvement of living conditions for the mass of people could he see any chance of combating the present unprecedented wave of crime everywhere evident.

He expressed himself as being fully in favor of placing families on the land and in giving all the assistance possible to agriculture.

He expressed the opinion that taxation should be so governed to least damage private enterprise.

Summing up, he stressed the optimistic note. Definite signs of business revival were evident. He advocated the spirit of hope, happiness and cheerfulness now being translated with such telling force by the Oxford Group, whose doctrines, he said, were after all not a new faith but a revival of the instinctive truth.

Sensational Evidence at Hearing of Britishers In Moscow

HIS DENIAL

Thornton grasped the amplifying apparatus so that his voice would reach everyone in the room, before he declared in a loud voice:

"I deny the testimony I signed at the investigation after my arrest concerning the information I received about factories at Zlatoust.

"Those who work for me gave me information about the operation of our machinery and general conditions at the electric station which was necessary to our firm. I received no military information."

"Well," asked Roginsky, "why did you sign your previous statement?"

"Because my answers were suggested by your questions at the time," the witness replied.

The assistant prosecutor asked him sardonically whether he had been hypnotized.

Thornton admitted he also had received information concerning the political ideas of the workers at Zlatoust.

"My firm gives Soviet Russia credits to buy machinery. That is why we are interested in general condition," he said.

"So," said Roginsky, "you investigated the stability of the Soviet power through your agents?"

Thornton nodded.

"COMRADE" AND "CITIZEN"

Then he turned to presiding Judge Ulrich.

"Comrade judge," he began, but Roginsky cut him short.

"Citizen judge to you," said the assistant prosecutor.

Thornton did not attempt to finish what he had started to say.

"At the investigation," said Roginsky, "you said you and Monkhouse (another of the accused) collected spy information."

"I deny that term spy," Thornton retorted. "We got information only of interest to our firm."

With Thornton still on the stand Allan Monkhouse was called on for the first time during the trial. Requested to confirm or deny Thornton's testimony, he upheld the witness in every detail.

P. E. Olyenik, one of the eleven Russian defendants, also questioned as he sat in the prisoners' dock, said he had supplied Thornton with information concerning conditions at the Zlatoust military factories and railroad transport.

"I deny that," Thornton cut in. "My firm is not interested in such things."

SCENES AT KENTUCKY TRIAL

A criminal trial is a rarity in mountainous Martin County, Kentucky, so virtually everyone for miles around crowded into Inez, county seat, for the "human sacrifice cult" murder trial of John H. Mills and eight others. Above is a glimpse of the old courthouse at Inez where the trial was held. Mrs. Rhoda Mills, right, was a principal witness and told of the "sacrifice" killing of Mrs. Lucinda Mills, sixty-three. Below is shown a part of an overflow crowd from the courtroom being entertained by a "medicine man" ventriloquist. Yesterday John H. Mills, Ballard Mills and Blaine McGinnis were convicted of murder. The punishment of John H. Mills was fixed at life imprisonment, and sentences of twenty-one years each were imposed on Ballard Mills and Blaine McGinnis.

"GHOSTS" HAUNT OLD GRANT HOME

New York, April 13.—Strange sounds have come recently from the four-story brown stone building with the broken windows and the "For Sale" sign outside at 3 East Sixty-sixth Street, where Ulysses S. Grant lived after retiring from the Presidency.

The disturbances have included the crunching of broken glass and the shattering of glass yet unbroken, exuberant laughter and shrill cries approximating "Chickie, the cops!" The noises were limited to the hours between 3 and 6 p.m., except on Saturday. The old home is in a condition strongly suggesting "haunted," but since when were ghosts abroad in the afternoon?

Only one other explanation seemed likely—boys—and a sleuthing expedition yesterday studied the evidence. The ladder to the second floor rear showed unmistakable signs of being home-made. On the gaunt walls to which it led loomed startlingly black fingerprints—all at a height of about five feet. Chalked vertically at the sides of a bare fireplace, "Vinny" and "Andy" wobbled in large letters.

The property, now owned by James W. Gerard, former Ambassador to Germany, is thoroughly fenced, but the barrier is not too high for determined twelve-year-old adventurers. At any rate, it is apparently easy to wait for an appropriate moment, shove up the stick through the iron loop in the fence door and sneak in. The rest is merely a question of picking one's way across a mass of splintered wood, rusty pipe and slivered panes.

On the ceilings of those second floor rooms which still provide a footing, gilt chandelier tops recall the better days of the house. And there is still one mirror, intact, its thickly smeared surface streaked clean only as high as the most recent visitors could reach.

At the office of Mr. Gerard it was insisted that he had not been officially informed of any trespassers. It was even intimated that there had been no trespassers. And such being the case, there could be only one explanation after all for the noises, the ladder, the fingerprints, the chalked names and the smudged mirror. Who said there are no ghosts?

BALANCED BUDGET DESIRED

The text of the recommendation follows:

"The Canadian Chamber of Commerce expresses disappointment and concern that the federal budget as now before Parliament, while adding to the already heavy burden of taxation, does not indicate that economies have been adopted to the degree necessary to meet the present serious conditions and respectfully suggests that those economies already proposed be further extended to permit of the national budget being balanced at the earliest possible date.

"The chamber does not presume to suggest in detail how such governmental economies should be effected, but it does venture to point out Canada is a much overgoverned country and the chamber desires to assure the government it would heartily endorse drastic reductions and rearrangements of the public service.

EXAMPLES OF INDUSTRIES

"The chamber further respectfully points out that since those engaged in commerce, industry and finance and the public generally have been required to economize and to develop efficiency to an unprecedented degree, it behooves the federal government to apply the same principles in the conduct of the country's business.

"To sum up, the Canadian chamber realizes it is the duty of each citizen to be personally concerned about the state of the national finances, and to assist the government in its efforts toward economy by assuring it of the support of the general body of citizens to that end; and further the Canadian chamber believes that informed public opinion requires that prevailing conditions should be met by the government taking the necessary steps now in reducing expenditures, however drastic they may be, and that action should not be deferred."

German Nazi Moves Anxiously Watched By European States

Hitler's Foreign Policies Cause More Uneasiness Than Baiting of Jews

By George Hambleton, Canadian Press Staff Writer

London, April 13.—The Chancelleries of Europe are stirring with uneasy mutterings. Adolf Hitler's sweeping centralization of German power has created more uneasiness than the baiting of Jews which it is felt will gradually die down.

New states established under the Treaty of Versailles bitterly objects to German treaty revision proposals which would reduce their territories.

Hitler frankly aims at a political union with Austria, which would be a violation of the Treaty of Versailles unless affected by consent of the Council of the League of Nations. Along the German and Danish frontier Nazis are busily conducting a campaign in favor of the return of northern Schleswig to Germany. In a plebiscite, northern Schleswig voted for union with Denmark.

NO UNIFORMS

The Danish Rigsdag has passed a bill (obviously aimed at Nazi activities) which will prohibit members of political organizations from wearing uniforms. Sweden, Denmark's neighbor, is following Nazi frontier activities with similarly close attention.

France is anxiously wondering what will be Hitler's next move. Former Premier Edouard Herriot holds that Germany's claim for equality of armaments on land will be followed by another German claim for equality of armaments at sea and that then the naval powers will have to face a further claim for the return of German colonies.

Germany is in the meantime planning a great May Day festival for labor which is to be likewise a patriotic mass celebration of the new Germany. More than a million people are expected to gather on the great Berlin parade ground of imperial days. Hitler will announce the government's programme and the vast gathering will sing the great Fatherland song which Moritz Arndt wrote in 1812 summoning Germany to cast off the yoke of Napoleon.

WEALTHY BEING POOR SMARTLY

But Well-fixed Sophisticated Grown-ups Take to De Luxe Toy Trains

By GILBERT SWAN

New York, April 13.—H. Charles Winans (Katherine Brush's husband) made $250,000,000 in Cuban sugar and blew himself to an electric train, allegedly for little "Tommy" Brush.

His guests (adult) get down on the floor, toss to see who is motorman, switchman and so forth and while away the hours until midnight. John Farrar says there is a terrific interest on the part of male parents in trains, "particularly switches." His train takes up the floor of two rooms, when laid out. He envies George Lorimer his, however, for Lorimer's is a deluxe train, oversized and overlong. J. P. Morgan has not gone in for trains, but he keeps a row of mechanical toy men on his office desk that fall over and bounce back to position.

The dinner guest receiving most attention this week is an erstwhile newspaperman, just back from Hollywood. Comes a lull in the dinner conversation and he produces his most treasured souvenir of Hollywood. It is a gray bone button, which he takes oath came from the sleeve nearest the heart on the first man's suit that Marlene Deitrich wore! REST AND RECREATION

A close friend of President Roosevelt says that the secret of his boundless energy lies in his great gift for going to sleep the minute he hits the bed and never waking until morning. Also, he can drop off in no time at all for a cat nap after lunch and wake up fifteen minutes later, fresh as a daisy.

KEEP UP THE SUSPENSE

The latest story about the Alfred Lunt-Lynn Fontaine combination comes from a friend of theirs who has access to their apartment and comes and goes at will. Arriving at 11 o'clock the other morning he found them both still in bed, Lunt with his light on reading a thick book, Lynn apparently still asleep in the other bed. Tiptoeing close, he was astounded to see it was the Bible that Lunt was reading. Before he could open his mouth, Lynn rose up suddenly, waving him back. "Don't tell him how it ends," she pleaded. "Please don't tell him how it ends!"

BEING POOR SMARTLY

It is smart to act poor in New York now but at that some folks seem to be carrying the thing pretty far!

An unemployed girl, going to get a cheap outfit at Klein's huge cafeteria dress emporium down on Union Square, saw a Rolls Royce at the curb, chauffeur waiting. Just noted it in passing.

Inside Klein's (where you help yourself and pay as you leave) she was trying on a $1.98 spring suit, when her attention was attracted to the opposite end of the long room. There, standing as if at attention, with no expression on her immobile face, was a woman all turned out in correct English maid's costume, holding a luxurious mink coat, hat, purse and a frock. Near her was a dashing young society matron, undoubtedly her mistress and owner of the Rolls Royce, struggling with three little $7.95 numbers.

NEW HOME AID PLAN IN THE U.S.

Associated Press

Washington, April 13.—Creation of a permanent system of federal savings and loan associations as well as an emergency $2,000,000,000 corporation to refinance home mortgages would be authorized under the bill recommended to the United States Congress to-day by President Roosevelt.

The bill would authorize subscription of $100,000,000 by the government for setting up a permanent system of federal associations "to provide mutual thrift institutions in which people may place their savings and invest their funds, and in order to provide for the financing of homes."

These institutions would be in the nature of building and loan associations, but the bill provides they should not be established in any community unless the home loan bank board feels such community "is insufficiently served by local thrift and home-financing institutions."

U.S. Sending Woman Minister To Denmark

Senate Approves President's Choice of Mrs. Ruth Bryan Owen For Post at Copenhagen

Associated Press

Washington, April 13.—Mrs. Ruth Bryan Owen, confirmed to-day as this country's first and the world's second women envoy, thereby adds another chapter to a career color-splashed from childhood.

The only other country which sent a woman abroad as ambassador is Soviet Russia.

The new United States Minister to Denmark has an unusual, vivid personality, and its mainspring is her interest in people.

Two years ago, it took her to Denmark to explore Hans Christian Andersen's country, and now President Roosevelt is sending her back as official representative of this country.

"I am looking forward with happiest anticipation to this new post," Mrs. Owen said, "both because of my keen interest in foreign affairs, through service on that committee in the House, and because of the many ties of friendship and interest I have in Denmark."

LIVED IN ENGLAND

Had Mrs. Owen, who is a daughter of the late William Jennings Bryan, been sent to Great Britain Egypt, India, or any one of a half dozen other countries, her "ties of friendship" would have been there also. For the fate-threads of her life led her into far places from a Nebraska girlhood.

Her marriage to a British army officer, Reginald Owen, took her to Jamaica, England and Egypt. During the World War, in which her husband fought, she served as nurse, to make the experience dramatic.

She returned to this country, became as adept in oratory as her father before her, was widowed, won a seat in Congress, lost it, and then campaigned for Roosevelt.

Her home is at Coconut Grove, Florida.

AMBASSADOR TO POLAND

When he nominated Mrs. Owen yesterday, President Roosevelt also nominated James M. Curley, mayor of Boston, to be ambassador to Poland.

He also sent to the Senate the nomination of Frank T. Bell of Washington State, to be commissioner of fisheries.

Commons Debates Arbitral Tribunals For Rail Systems

Abandonment of Branch Lines Also Discussed By M.P.'S As They Consider C.N.R.-C.P.R. Measure

Ottawa, April 13.—The Commons yesterday afternoon considered the C.N.R.-C.P.R. bill in committee. The measure, designed to implement the recommendations of the Duff report, is being taken up clause by clause.

Progress was slow yesterday and no clause was passed.

Among other things the bill would set up an arbitral tribunal to settle disputes between the railway companies. From the Liberal side came an amendment to clothe the Board of Railway Commissioners with that power.

There was no doubt of the need of some board with authority over the railway companies, replied Hon. R. J. Manion, Minister of Railways, but the government thought the arbitral tribunal would serve better than the Board of Railway Commissioners. In recent years the railways had spent scores of millions of dollars unwisely, a considerable portion of which might have been saved if some supervision had been exercised. For instance, such a tribunal would never have consented to the building of two hotels in Halifax or in Vancouver. It "would have put its foot down" on those propositions. He instanced also the $50,000,000 Montreal terminal project and the triangular ship service of the British Columbia Coast as duplicate and unwise services.

BRANCH LINES

At a previous sitting an amendment moved by Ross Gray, Liberal, Lambton West, Ont., to clause two was under consideration. It would have added a sub-section which would have the effect of preventing the new board of trustees of the Canadian National from abandoning any branch lines without the consent of the Board of Railway Commissioners with right of appeal to the Cabinet.

Yesterday, Hon. R. J. Manion stated he had had legal advice since the amendment was moved and was assured the amendment was unnecessary as the law as it stood, compelled the trustees to get any such abandonments sanctioned by the Railway Commission.

The Canadian Pacific Railway had power to abandon lines without securing the consent of the Railway Commission, but this did not apply to the Canadian National, Dr. Manion continued.

He explained to the committee one case in which the arbitral tribunal provided for in the bill before the House would so function as to prevent the building of a branch line. If one of the two railway companies decided to build a branch line and the other represented the same purpose could be served by arranging running rights or something of that kind, then it would be for the tribunal to decide the matter. And the tribunal would have power to rule against building the new line.

SILVER DEBATE AT WASHINGTON

Mexico Hopes Nations Will Take Action to Rehabilitate Precious Metal

Following is the second of a series gathered by the Associated Press on the hopes and expectations of the nations invited to participate in President Roosevelt's conferences in Washington on world problems.

Mexico City, April 13.—Mexico, as the producer of about 42 per cent of the world's silver supply, can hope for no greater benefit at the forthcoming economic conversations in Washington than international action to rehabilitate silver.

Mexico has long predicted and looked forward hopefully to such conferences as proposed by President Roosevelt, and the principal Mexican statesmen have repeatedly stressed the need to "meet the crisis with physical as well as psychic means."

STATEMENT BY CALLES

Gen. Plutarco Elias Calles, dominant figure in Mexico, many months ago said: "I am positively convinced this crisis may lead to a catastrophe unless those in the charge of the destinies of the nations drop their apathy and lack of courage and get together to work out adequate means of economic co-operation before it is too late."

It is believed Alberto J. Pani, Mexico's delegate, a strong Calles follower, will lend a ready ear to Mr. Roosevelt's suggestions at Washington. It is generally conceded that in Pani Mexico has chosen her best economist and financier to go to Washington.

New Bootlegging Of Beer in United States

Pittsburgh, April 13.—The Post-Gazette says bootleggers and racketeers cornered thousands of cases of Pittsburgh's diminishing beer supply, reaping fat profits by selling the brew at three times its market value.

The newspaper states the racketeers, foreseeing the inability of brewers to satisfy the early demand, started hoarding beer as soon as its sale became legal.

Underworld characters were quoting beer at as high as $5.80 a case and $35 a barrel, in Pittsburgh to-day, according to the paper.

UNIFORMS BARRED

FOR FREER TRADE IN THE AMERICAS

President Roosevelt Also Condemns Warfare in Two Parts of South America

Associated Press

Washington, April 12.—Existing warfare in South America was condemned yesterday by President Roosevelt as a "backward step," in a speech commemorating Pan-American Day.

The President took the occasion to propose the American governments initiate individual steps promptly to "abolish all unnecessary and artificial barriers and restrictions which now hamper the healthy flow of trade between the peoples of the American republics."

Addressing a special session of the governing board of the Pan-American Union, Mr. Roosevelt extolled the spirit of unity among the American republics.

Although he did not mention specifically the countries now engaged in hostilities, the Latin-American diplomats understood he referred to the undeclared war in the Chaco region between Bolivia and Paraguay, and hostilities between Peru and Colombia over possession of the Amazon port of Leticia.

Reward Money Is Returned to Treasury

Los Angeles, April 13.—A long dispute over the $10,000 reward offered by the city five years ago for the arrest of William Edward Hickman, slayer of Marion Parker, was settled yesterday when the city council ordered the funds returned to the city treasury. A number of claimants appeared and two of them, Buck Lieualien and Tom Gurdane, peace officers, who took Hickman into custody near Pendleton, Ore., sued for the reward. The city attorney reported to the council the federal court had denied their suit.

THIS FOUR-DAY CHAT MAY BE HISTORICAL TURNING POINT

Referring to his forthcoming visit to the United States in the House of Commons to-day, Mr. Ramsay MacDonald made a special point of the debt question, first of all disposing of reports that a moratorium had been reached by branding them as absolutely false, and then explaining that he expected Mr. Roosevelt "to talk with the most friendly candor of his own difficulties" just as he would talk to Mr. Roosevelt about the difficulties which would have to be faced in Great Britain "if certain proposals are put to the Commons."

Mr. MacDonald declared that neither the people of Great Britain nor the people of the United States could conceal the fact that "debt payments have had a very important political effect, and a settlement acceptable to both sides would be one of the greatest blessings that could happen." He implied that on his return from his conference with the President his own colleagues would be in a position to make up their mind how to handle the June 15 debt payment to Washington.

While The New York Times fully realizes that Mr. MacDonald and Mr. Roosevelt will have no lack of subjects to talk over, it puts the question of debts first, not only because June 15 is near at hand, but also because the British Chancellor of the Exchequer will introduce his budget in the House of Commons while the Prime Minister is away. This New York newspaper is curious to know whether Mr. Chamberlain will include in his financial statement a provision for the payment of the next instalment or not. As Mr. MacDonald will have had at least part of his four-day chat with the United States President before budget day in London, set for April 25, Mr. Chamberlain's statement in regard to the debt provision no doubt will be determined by what tentative arrangement is reached at Washington.

President Roosevelt has been silent on the war debt question since his inauguration, having had more pressing business on hand. It will be recalled, however, that during the presidential election campaign last year he declared his hostility to outright cancellation, but he maintained that debtors to his country should have the right to ask for reconsideration. Mr. MacDonald's statement in the House of Commons to-day contained no definite intimation as to the course he will pursue. If he, on behalf of his government, should ask for consideration, it is pointed out that as the law stands now Mr. Roosevelt would have to refuse because Congress has left him powerless to make or even propose adjustments. On this point The New York Times says in part:

> It is because there is such an impasse created by Congress in order to block any further move by President Hoover, after his declaration of the moratorium in 1931, that it has been confidently predicted that Mr. Roosevelt would request Congress to release him from the restrictions it had imposed. He surely would not ask for power to cancel the debts, but he might for power to proclaim a short moratorium and to enter upon negotiations to scale down the debts for due consideration given in return.

Congressmen of both parties are naturally sensitive on the subject of war debts. But if Mr. MacDonald and Mr. Roosevelt are to discuss the question, even to the limited extent of framing proposals for the consideration of both sides, it would seem that the President will require authority to do so. He has asked for so many big things and has obtained them with comparative ease, that it would surprise nobody if he successfully persuaded Congress that it would be in the interests of all parties if he were given some leeway in this matter. Unofficially, at any rate, the subject will be discussed.

SOCKEYE SALMON TREATY MAY YET SURVIVE

Although the Sockeye Salmon Treaty between Canada and the United States has been dormant for some time, it is not dead by any means. It is still with the Foreign Relations Committee of the Senate at Washington and Senator Dill from the neighboring state on the south thinks when minor alterations have been made to some of its provisions it will be approved by the Democrat majority now in control of the upper house.

Senator Dill and certain interests in the State of Washington do not approve some of the powers which the treaty would give to the proposed international board, "by which our small fishermen could be put out of business to the advantage of our cannerymen." He then goes on:

> We do not blame Canada in this connection. Canadian waters supply the spawn for the great salmon fisheries of the Puget Sound area, and the demands of the Canadian fishermen are just. They are entitled to their fair share of the salmon.
>
> We blame our own people for the provisions to which we take objection.
>
> We are confident that the difficulties can be satisfactorily adjusted. The general principles of the treaty are acceptable and the agreement between the two countries can be made very valuable.
>
> My own view is that, within a reasonable time, the treaty will be slightly modified and will be ratified by the Senate.

It is well known, of course, that this treaty has to do with one of the most important industries on this Coast. Three conventions already have been drawn up, all with the principal object of restoring the sockeye salmon run to the Fraser River system and preserving it for all time. Canada has approved them, all have been signed at Washington; but the United States Senate has killed two. The third now awaits its pleasure.

WOMAN CONTINUALLY WIDENING HER SPHERE OF SERVICE

Although to British Columbia belongs the honor of electing the first woman to any British Empire Parliament, and to Great Britain that of appointing the first woman to a cabinet position, it has remained for the United States to appoint the first woman from this continent as Minister to a foreign country. Mrs. Ruth Bryan Owen, a daughter of the late William Jennings Bryan, as adept in oratory as her illustrious father, having already sat in Congress, will represent her country in Denmark, where she has many ties of friendship and interest. Mrs. Owen, the widow of a British army officer, served in the war as a nurse, and returned a few years ago to her native land. The only other woman envoy is in the service of Soviet Russia.

The second woman Minister of Labor, incidentally, made her appearance in the Roosevelt cabinet in the person of Miss Frances Perkins, or to give her her married name, Mrs. Paul Wilson. In view of her wide experience of industrial and social problems it is doubtful if the President could have made a better choice. She has lectured extensively on sociology and has written prolifically on allied subjects. The first ministerial post in Great Britain to go to a woman went to Miss Margaret Bondfield, who joined the first MacDonald cabinet as Minister of Labor; she also was chosen for her intimate knowledge of workers' problems and conditions. There is, of course, a substantial sprinkling of women members in the House of Commons at Westminster, and we in Canada have our own Senator Carine Wilson and that fearless member for Southeast Gray, Miss Agnes MacPhail. We may yet have a woman Minister abroad.

It was a long time before some of the hard-shelled opponents of any form of change grudgingly made themselves get used to the idea of women having a vote, taking a seat in Parliament, and filling official positions. Years of bitter campaigning in Great Britain preceded the extension of the franchise; and it was only the fine service women gave during the war that softened the hearts of British parliamentarians who were hostile to female suffrage. Another storm broke out, however, when the age-limit for women voting was reduced from thirty years to twenty-one. Before the proposal was adopted it was freely predicted that this "flapper vote" would not be exercised, that young women of that age were not interested in public matters. Ballots cast at elections in the meantime have shown that the prophets were out in their reckoning; women have taken their place in the affairs of the world.

SPAIN ATONES FOR HER ANCIENT ERRORS

One of the noteworthy developments arising out of the anti-Jewish campaign in Germany is the renunciation of his German citizenship by Professor Albert Einstein and his welcome by Spain.

In the seventeenth century Spain unceremoniously ejected her Jewish population and submitted them to the indignities common to that period of history. Long before the nineteenth century had reached its close Spain had descended to the level of a very inferior power and it was not until a little more than twenty-five years ago that she began to ponder over her lost prestige and to scout around for some means of regaining it. The first revolution in 1923 was not a success because it began with a military junta seizing the power of government by force. The present republic has scarcely recovered from the pains of its birth; but it seems to be learning to toddle, and within a few years may be stepping fairly briskly towards a more stable national condition. In her attitude towards Jews Spain is not repeating her initial mistake.

Germany, on the other hand, is following a policy discredited ages ago. But a highly efficient people will not wait nearly three centuries to correct the mistake to which an upstart has committed them.

WHAT OTHER PAPERS SAY

LISTEN
Bennett in 1930

"Listen, you agriculturists of the west, and all the other parts of Canada, you who have been taught to mock at tariffs and applaud free trade. Tell me, when did free trade fight for you? You say tariffs are only for the manufacturers. I will make them fight for you as well. I will use them to blast a way into the markets that have been closed to you."

CAN'T CHANGE HUMAN NATURE
The Border Cities Star

The Hon. Leopold Macaulay presents the best reason of all why it is not likely that the people of Ontario will be converted to Socialist doctrine. Human nature stands in the way, he points out, and human nature does not change rapidly. "Can you imagine," he asks, "3,300,000 people working for the state and not for themselves, when we can't make 606,000 motorists drive as they should? I can't."

QUOTATIONS
The Toronto Star

A newspaper writer recently spoke of Barnum as having said you can't fool all the people. It was not Barnum but Abraham Lincoln who said it and what he said was: "You can fool some of the people all the time and all of the people some of the time, but you can't fool all the people all of the time." Barnum could not have said that, but what he did say was that "there's one born every minute," which is a very different kind of statement. Another writer spoke of "a witty Frenchman" having said as regards the abolition of capital punishment, "Let the assassins begin it." If Napoleon was a witty Frenchman the statement is correct enough, for it was he who said it.

VOTE SOON ON MONEY BY-LAW

Esquimalt Property Owners to Decide on $30,000 Issue on April 29

Esquimalt's voters will decide whether or not the municipality will float a $30,000 issue to meet the district's obligations during 1933, on April 29, when they will voe on a special money by-law for that amount, it was decided at the special council meeting yesterday evening.

Before that date, probably on April 27 or 28, Reeve Albert Heald and members of his council will address a public meeting, explaining the need for this emergency measure. The municipal officials hope to overcome any opposition to the measure through their explanations.

Yesterday evening the council gave the by-law preliminary consideration. Providing it is endorsed by the voters, it will be finally passed at a meeting on May 1.

The by-law was drafted after the Provincial Legislature had given Esquimalt power to submit the measure to the people in the form of a referendum. Repayment of funds would be spread over a period of ten years, it is understood.

J. R. Collister will act as returning officer for the referendum. Only property owners will be permitted to vote. Polling stations will be in the municipal hall and in the store at the corner of Arm Street and Craigflower Road.

If the measure is passed, $26,000 of the $30,000 will be used to take care of net liabilities outstanding on December 31, 1932, while the rest will be used for unemployment relief.

OBYPAS HEAR "WEATHER MAN"

It was with great interest that the members of the Obypa Club listened to Napier Denison, director of the Dominion Meteorological Department in his address "An Evening With the Weatherman" Tuesday evening at the Oak Bay United Church. He told of the mysteries of the solar system and the elimatic conditions: of the velocity of light and sound waves, and the recording of rain, heat, sun and earthquake shocks. David Stott, convener, introduced the speaker of the evening.

Mr. Denison has for more than thirty years been connected with the meteorological service of this province, coming to Victoria in the capacity of weather observer and forecaster. It was in 1914 that he was appointed director of the Gonzales Observatory, which he designed, and the construction of which he supervised. Mr. Denison told of the various instruments housed at the observatory. He described the seismograph, which record the vibrations of earthquakes in any part of the world. Mr. Denison stated that on an average an earthquake is recorded each day on these instruments. The electric anemograph, recorder of the direction and velocity of wind, this, and the evaporograph which measures the precipitation and humidity of the air, are both inventions of Mr. Denison.

Other instruments spoken of were the rain gauges, of both old and modern types, the sun recorder, which tells of the amount of sunshine per day. Victoria, Mr. Denison stated, was fortunate in having more sun per day than any place in Canada or the state. The effects of sun spots upon the earth, making it several degrees cooler while the sun sports are noticed were also described.

Mr. Denison told of the method of finding the "ceiling" by using small balloons, filled with hydrogen. The balloons rise at a speed of 590 feet per minute, and on cloudy days when the balloon disappears, all that is required to measure the height of the "ceiling" is to multiply 590 feet by the amount of minutes it takes to hit the ceiling of clouds.

At the conclusion of his talk, members of the club put many questions to Mr. Denison, which proved very interesting answers, such as volcanic disturbances and their effects on the earth in general, of methods of recovering and sending weather charts to all corners of the United States and Canada.

W. Housley, president, thanked the speaker, on behalf of the club.

Other items on the well-prepared programme were piano selections by Neville Barker and a violin solo by Chris Miller, both artists showing great talent in their renditions.

For his meditation, Cyril Irvings, club treasurer, spoke on "Christ and the Profit Motive in Industry." He stressed the good ideals of business management, backed by the ideals of Christianity, which if practiced would have a big effect in the return of prosperity. He touched briefly on the "Oxford Group" movement. C. A. Gibbard opened the devotional period by a short prayer. The business of the evening consisted of final plans on the hike for Good Friday. The next session will be held next Tuesday evening to which young people are cordially invited.

Special to The Times

Nanaimo, April 13.—The Maloharis perjury case collapsed yesterday evening when Mr. Justice Murphy, after hearing the testimony of W. A. Walker, deputy fire marshal and Chief Parkin, declared the statement made by Mrs. Maloharis to Walker was not voluntary and he asked the foreman of the jury to declare a verdict of not guilty, stating he would take the responsibility if the Crown appealed the case.

HOW TO TELL IF YOU HAVE ACID STOMACH
And How to Stop It Instantly

According to many authorities, some 80% of the people of today have acid stomach. This because so many foods, comprising the modern diet, are acid forming foods.

It usually makes itself felt in sour stomach, indigestion, headaches, nausea, "gas," "biliousness," and most frequently in stomach pains that come about thirty minutes after eating. So you can easily tell if you have it.

Now Quickly and Easily Corrected

If you do have acid stomach, don't worry about it. You can correct it in a very simple manner. Just do this. It will—alkalize your acid soaked stomach almost immediately. You will feel like another person.

TAKE—2 teaspoonfuls of Phillips' Milk of Magnesia with a glass of water every morning when you get up. Take another teaspoonful thirty minutes after eating. And another before you go to bed.

What This Does

That's all you do. But you do it regularly, EVERY DAY, so long as you have any symptoms of distress.

This acts to neutralize the stomach acids that foster your "upset" stomach, that invite headaches and that feeling of lassitude and lost energy.

Try it. Results will amaze you. Your head will be clear. You'll forget you have a stomach.

BUT—be careful that you get REAL milk of magnesia when you buy; genuine PHILLIPS' Milk of Magnesia. See that the name "Phillips" is stamped clearly on the label.

ALSO IN TABLET FORM: Phillips' Milk of Magnesia Tablets are now on sale at drug stores everywhere. Each tiny tablet is the equivalent of a teaspoonful of Genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia.

UNION PENSIONS SEEN IN PERIL

Cannot Be Continued Long on Present Basis, Survey Finds

But They Have Saved Many Persons From Being Public Charges

New York, April 10.—Trade Union pension systems virtually all of which have been operated independently of employers, on the whole are in so precarious a condition that "they cannot much longer be maintained on existing financial foundations," according to a report just published by Industrial Relations Conselors, Inc., 165 Broadway.

"The conclusion is inescapable," it was declared in a summary of the report made public, "that attempts to strengthen these bases will result in such losses of membership as to make this afternative impossible."

The fundamental difficulty with trade union pension schemes, it was found, was the unavoidably high cost of any pension system when financed out of current revenues. The level of wages in the early years of the century, when the movement began, was too low to allow the accumulation by wage earners of pension funds on sound actuarial principles, it was said. When pension plans were initiated the problem facing the unions was to care for the existing number of dependent superannuated workers and the actual payment of benefits to them was the immediate consideration.

"Inasmuch as the number of pensioners increased more rapidly than the earnings of active union members, accumulation of adequate pension reserves was not practicable," the summary said. "Union membership, moreover, has decreased since 1920, while the number of members reacing the pension age during recent years has continued to increase. Widespread unemployment and wage reductions soon began to make it extremely difficult and, in some cases, has already made it impossible to meet the obligations incurred, which depend wholly upon the current earnings of their participants."

After pointing out that the union pension plans, in contrast to that of typical industrial plans, usually provide pensions only on a relief basis, the report declared that nevertheless the trade union pension movement could not be considered a failure, because it had been the means of distributing many thousands of union members and their widows who otherwise might have become public charges. The record of failures among trade union plans, it was said, thus far had not been greater than it has been among pension plans operated by employers and for the benefit of teachers and ministers.

As a result of the present status of union pension plans, labor organizations, according to the report, have redoubled their efforts to obtain the passage of old-age pension laws. Old-age pension laws, it was added, had been presented to many legislatures and the American Federation of Labor had formulated a standard bill which had the support of the organized labor movement.

Musical Art Group Hear History Of Mormon City

Travelogue By Miss Agnew Feature of Yesterday's Programme at Shrine

Vocal and Instrumental Selections Round Out Entertaining Afternoon

In one of the most interesting programmes of the season, the Victoria Musical Art Society at the Shrine auditorium yesterday afternoon enjoyed a delightful resume of the history of Mormonism and a description of Salt Lake City and its surroundings by Miss Kathleen Agnew. Vocal and instrumental solos by well-known artists rounded out the programme.

FOUNDING OF MORMONISM

Miss Agnew traced the early settlement of Utah by the pioneers and the founding by Joseph Smith of Mormonism, of which Salt Lake City is today the headquarters. She read the articles of faith of the sect, which is said to be founded on the Book of Mormon, whose existence was revealed to Smith in a vision. Reference was made to the polygamous teachings of Smith and also by Brigham Young, another of the early figures of Mormonism, who led the caravan which first settled at Salt Lake in 1847, after a trek of over a thousand miles by covered wagon to escape persecution for their religious beliefs.

The magnificent Mormon Temple at Salt Lake City was vividly described by Miss Agnew. Commenced in 1853, it is sacrosanct to Mormons, no one else being allowed to enter its portals. She also spoke of the monument erected to Bingham Young by one of his grandsons; of the monument erected in 1913 to seagulls, as an expression of gratitude to the timely arrival of the flock of seagulls who delivered the early settlers from a plague of locusts which threatened to devour their crops.

PROGRESSIVE CITY

The speaker recalled the great progress made in the Mormon city, which to-day is one of the most beautiful and progressive cities in the United States. It boasts the oldest departmental store in the world, which was started in covered wagon days. Reference was made to the city's cultural assets, and Miss Agnew also noted that in spite of its very fine public schools, the cost of educating a child was only $83 per annum.

The Tabernacle, which is known to radio listeners through its splendid organ and choral recitals, was described in detail, together with the magnificent organ.

The amount of salt in Salt Lake is estimated as sufficient to supply every human being on earth with a quarter of a pound daily for the next five years. In spite of this, the islands on it have fresh water and are sanctuaries for birds and waterfowl of every variety, also for a herd of 300 buffalo, Miss Agnew noted.

SPIRIT COMMENDED

In conclusion she paid warm tribute to the spirit of the Mormon settlers and their descendents, whose independence and faith in their destiny had surmounted so many difficulties in pioneer days and had resulted in the upbuilding of such a splendid city as Salt Lake.

MUSICAL NUMBERS

The musical part of the programme was composed of instrumental and vocal numbers, opening with two trios by The Mandolin Trio, Mrs. Gordon Cross, Miss Dorothy Lea and Miss May Warnock, their well-played numbers including Weir's "Old Time Medley," featuring a number of popular airs, and "Simple Aveu" (Thome). Miss Barbara Fraser displayed undoubted gifts as a pianiste in her artistic interpretation of Mendelsohn's "Andante and Rondo Capricioso."

Miss Edith Howell, soprano, sang with much charm a group of three solos: "Rain" (Curran); "My Heart Is a Lute" (Woodman) and "Homing" (Del Riego). The Metropolitan Ladies' Quartette, whose personnel includes Miss Dorothy Parsons, Mrs. P. Tupman, Mrs. C. Kemsley and Mrs. S. M. Morton, delighted the audience with their two well-balanced and harmonious numbers: "Sleeping Beauty" (Woyrsch) and "The Spring Rose" (Bainton). Miss Eleanor Barfoot and Miss Kathleen Irvine shared the role of accompanist.

During the afternoon Mrs. W. A. Jameson, the president, reminded the gathering of the annual meeting to be held on May 2 at 8.15 o'clock, and also asked members to send in request numbers for the annual "request programme" next month.

OPERATIC WINNER

whose rendition of the famous song "Elsa's Dream" from Wagner's "Lohengrin" was one of the highlights of the Victoria Musical Festival last week. For her performance, which occurred Friday evening in the operatic class, Miss Parsons received 90 marks and was warmly praised by George Dodds, noted vocal judge of Newcastle-on-Tyne. She again sang "Elsa's Dream" on the closing night of the festival in the Royal Victoria Theatre. On Saturday afternoon she will be the soloist during the tea hour at the Empress Hotel.

Mrs. B. C. Gale Commissioner Of Girl Guides

At the meeting of the local association of Girl Guides held yesterday evening at headquarters, the members stood in silent tribute to the memory of Miss Mabel Unwin, for many years treasurer and latterly secretary of the association. The president, Mrs. Kyrle Symons, spoke of the great loss sustained by the Girl Guides in the passing of one who had their interests so much at heart. Letters of sympathy were received from Municipal Chapter and Camosun Chapter I.O.D.E.

Announcement was made of the resignation of Mrs. W. C. Nichol from the office of divisional commissioner for South Vancouver Island, as she expects to be absent for some months in England. She will, however, act as vice-president of the provincial council. Mrs. B. C. Gale has accepted the appointment of divisional commissioner. Mrs. P. E. Corby has kindly undertaken the duties of secretary.

The First Victoria Ranger company was heartily congratulated by the meeting on winning the shield presented for country dancing at the Victoria Musical Festival for the fourth consecutive year.

Mrs. L. A. Genge, commissioner for Victoria east district, reported that she had attended an enrolment ceremony of the Foul Bay Company and had presented Miss Gladys Miles with a captain's warrant. She had also visited Gonzales company. All companies and packs in the district were showing progress.

Mrs. Archibald, for Victoria West, reported visits to the Chinese company where she had enrolled two guides, and to the First Victoria Brownie Pack, where she was much pleased with the training given by the Brown Owl, Mrs. Abraham.

Mrs. Stewart-Williams gave a brief account of the recent meeting of the Local Council of Women. Preliminary plans for a garden party to be held about June 10 were discussed. The next meeting will take place at headquarters on Tuesday, May 9 at 8 p.m.

Court to Decide If Child to Have Big Operation

White Plains, N.Y., April 13.—The life of two-year-old Helen Vasko was said to-day by physicians to depend on a decision of the appellate division of the Supreme Court.

She has a malignant tumor in her right eye and doctors said she is certain to die unless it is removed. But her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Vasko of Hastings, have objected to the operation and have gone to the appellate division with an appeal against an order of Judge George W. Smyth of Westchester County children's court that the operation be performed.

Doctors said the tumor eventually would press against her brain and kill her. When explained to the parents the mother and father refused to permit an operation.

The case was taken to the appellate division, which is expected to rule on Judge Smyth's order within a day or two.

FOUND CHILD DEAD IN BED

Courtenay, April 13—Returning from Courtenay on Saturday evening, Mr. and Mrs. Horst Werher Thran, who live on a farm near Headquarters, found their year-old baby dead from suffocation, in bed.

The baby had been left in the charge of an older child while the parents went to town, leaving instructions for it to be fed. The little girl in charge did not do this because she said she did not want to wake the baby while it was asleep. No inquest was considered necessary.

GLACIER PRIEST TO ENTER CRATER

Hubbard to Study Icy Volcano on Seventh Expedition to Alaska

New York, April 13. — In quest of further volcanological, archaelogical and geological knowledge a seventh expedition will be made to Alaska next month by the Rev. Bernard J. Hubbard, a Jesuit, known as "the Glacier priest," he revealed after a lecture at Town Hall on his Alaskan explorations.

Father Hubbard, who is head of the department of geology at Santa Clara University, said preparations would be completed by May 16, when the expedition will leave Seattle for Alaska. It will return in August.

One of the major purposes of the expedition will be to study volcanic formations in the crater of Mount Veniaminof, which never has been explored. This crater is filled with ice, constituting a glacier twenty-five miles in area. In the centre of it is the smoking cone of the active volcano beneath.

The expedition also will excavate on various sites of prehistoric native villages of the stone age in the Aleutian Islands. The sites were discovered and marked on previous expeditions. A third major object will be to study the lessening eruptive activity of Mount Shishaldin, called "the Fujiyama of Alaska." Father Hubbard and his party were the first to climb this mountain, which they did last May, several months after it had been in active eruption.

Accompanying the priest on the expedition will be Prof. Roderick Chisolm of the department of mathematics at Santa Clara University; Edgar Levin, a post-graduate student in geology at Stanford University, and George Peterson, an Alaskan trapper and guide.

Chisolm and Levin will sail with Father Hubbard on the steamship Delwood of the Harris Cannery of Yuminak Island, Alaska, working their way as ordinary seamen. Peterson will join them in Alaska. The professor has been on five previous expeditions with the priest, and Levin and Peterson on one each.

MINISTER IN LOVE TANGLE

Springfield Pastor Suspended By Church; Wife's Reconciliation Attempt Useless

Springfield, Mo., April 13.—The slight, blue-eyed wife of Rev. Sharon Inman faced life without bitterness to-day after losing a desperate gamble for her husband's affections.

Her experiment of inviting into her home her rival, Ezia Holdridge, twenty-year-old blonde, in the hope of winning back her husband's love, ended yesterday when she saw Inman and the girl trudge away down the highway toward Joplin, Mo. She bade them goodbye after taking them to the highway in her car.

The thirty-five-year-old minister, pastor of the Cave Springs Presbyterian Church near here, was suspended by church officials, who reported he appeared before them and admitted his love for Miss Holdridge.

"It was a good deal my fault," Mrs. Inman told interviewers. "I thought—I hoped, that she would see me, and the child and our home, and give him up. But nothing did any good."

NEW HOSPITAL FOR CHILDREN

Vancouver, April 13.—Contract for construction of a new hospital has been let by the board of directors of the Crippled Children's Hospital to the firm of Baynes and Horie. The price is $36,424, and it is expected construction will commence before the end of this month.

The institution, which will replace the present rented quarters at Marpole, will be erected on a new site, three and a half acres in extent, just south of the Langara golf links and overlooking the Fraser River.

Members of the Langford Women's Institute are invited to attend a silver tea and antique display at the Colwood Hall Wednesday afternoon, April 19, under the auspices of the Colwood Women's Institute.

Through the generosity of the Langford Community Association free vegetable seeds and seed potatoes can be obtained by anyone in the district by applying to H. G. Baynes at Langford Lake auto camp.

OLD-TIMER OF NANAIMO DIES

Mrs. Harry Shepherd Passes Away After Forty-six Years in Island City

THE LATE MRS. SHEPPHERD

Nanaimo, April 13.—Mrs. Ann Shepherd, wife of Harry Shepherd, passed away at the family residence, Nicol Street, yesterday afternoon, following a short illness. Mrs. Shepherd was born in Durham, England, and came with her husband to Nanaimo in 1887, residing in that city ever since. They were married in Newcastle-on-Tyne in 1882 and celebrated their golden wedding only last year.

Besides her husband, she is survived by six sons, John, Harry, William and Nelson of Nanaimo, Watson, Alberni, and Walter, of the provincial police staff at Williams Lake; two daughters, Miss Rhoda at home, and Mrs. Hackwood, of Nanaimo. The funeral will take place from the Jenkins Limited Undertaking Parlors on Saturday at 3.30 o'clock.

Your Baby and Mine

By MYRTLE MEYER ELDRED

Are you perplexed by some phase of baby's feeding or behavior? Mrs. Eldred will be glad to help you. Write her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a self-addressed stamped envelope with your letter.

MINIMUM AND MAXIMUM FORMULAS ARE CHECKS TO POOR FEEDING

It is impossible to be dictatorial about feeding formulas. We must never ignore the individual baby, for his response to any feeding formula is the indication of its success. The most anyone can do is to suggest the minimum formulas which will maintain baby's weight and provide sufficient protein for his growth needs. Then one may state the maximum formulas beyond which the mother should not go or risk overfeeding.

THE LEAST AND MOST

The least milk with which a baby can maintain weight and satisfy his protein needs is one and one-half ounces for each pound of weight. A fourteen-pound baby would require twenty-one ounces of milk daily. If this minimal amount does not satisfy baby's appetite or contribute to a good gain in weight, it may be increased to two ounces of milk for each pound of weight of twenty-eight ounces per day, the maximum figure. Baby may want or even need twenty-eight ounces of milk daily, so that his own particular formula should be what he accepts willingly and digests readily, an amount between twenty-one and twenty-eight ounces.

All formulas need water. The baby's fluid needs are larger than the maximum quantity of any milk formula, so boiled water is added to the boiled milk to satisfy these fluid needs.

AMOUNT OF FEEDINGS

This fourteen-pound baby might want six ounces at each of five feedings, so that nine ounces of water should be added to the twenty-one ounces of milk. He might want six-ounce feedings daily instead of five, or he might prefer five seven-ounce bottles. Only baby's appetite determines the size of his feedings. Ordinarily, an infant weighing fourteen pounds will be from four to six months old, and will be satisfied with formulas that range from six to eight ounces at each feeding.

The sugar requirements for any milk formula are about one ounce for the ten-pound baby, and one and one-half to two ounces for the baby weighing from twelve and fifteen pounds. After that there is no increase.

Let the mother keep in mind that baby needs at least one and one-half and not more than two ounces of milk for each pound of his weight. He needs at least four feedings daily and seldom more than six. He never needs more than thirty-two ounces of milk in any one day, and with water and sugar the largest formula is forty ounces and no more. This allows for five eight-ounce feedings. These are the guide lines by which we manipulate standard formulas to meet the growth and appetite needs of all babies.

WHEN YOU MAKE PROMISES TO CHILDREN, KEEP THEM

Teddy couldn't sleep. He lay there in the dark, his eyes wide open, thinking. He was trying to puzzle out something his mother had said.

By and by she looked in. "Asleep?"

"No," came a subdued little voice.

"Well, turn over now and close your eyes. You'll have to get over being disappointed."

"I'm not dis-appointed."

"Then what's the matter?"

"Nothing."

"That's a good boy!" she kissed him and fixed the covers.

The door closed and he was in darkness again. He lay very quietly but he didn't sleep.

The little boy was wondering about things. Why he was promised something that made him so very happy and then suddenly told that the promise couldn't be kept.

BEYOND HIS REASON

He wasn't old enough to reason in abstracts. To-night a very concrete problem was bothering him. He had never seen the moon at night. He always went to bed at 6, except last summer, when 7 was the hour.

The moon often had looked down at him in broad daylight—a whitish disc in a pale blue sky—but he had never seen the great golden plate on a velvet background like the pictures in his books. He had never seen even half a plate or even a saucer. At least, not since he had begun to take an interest in things celestial as well as those terrestrial.

To-day someone had spoken of the beauty of the moon last night. To-night it was to be full.

"I want to see the moon!" he had announced suddenly.

The family gasped. "It was true!" they looked at each other. "Teddy had never seen a great big round full moon!"

So his mother promised him he could stay up to see it. Then she thought about it rising an hour later. That wouldn't do at all! No, Teddy would have to go to bed on time. She tried to explain. He couldn't understand. He had been promised, and that to him was enough.

A PUZZLING QUESTION

Now he lay wondering why little boys could have promises made to them broken so easily. He wanted so to see the moon.

Downstairs he heard voices, the radio, doors closing, laughter, feet running up and down stairs. They had forgotten the boy and the moon and the promise. And it was all so important to him.

The harder he tried to think the wider awake he became.

He sat up in bed finally and watched the curtains blowing at the window. And then between the two houses across the way an enormous golden ball hung directly in his line of vision. The moon! He sat and stared and then leaped out of bed and hung on the window sill.

The moon seemed to say "I'm on your side. I fooled them all. Here we are—now take a good look; then be a good boy and go to sleep."

Teddy finally went back to bed and instantly to sleep. He was satisfied now. To-morrow broken promises would not exist—perhaps. At least not this one.

"Queen of Diamonds" Dies in London

London, April 13.—England's "Queen of Diamonds," the former Leam Barnato, recently divorced from Carlyle Blackwell, former film actor, died suddenly to-day.

She was sister of Woolf Barnato, millionaire racing motorist, and daughter of the late Barney Barnato, associate of Cecil Rhodes in the development of South African diamond mines.

Indians in Alberta cultivated 51,103 acres of land last year and produced nearly 600,000 bushels of grain.

IT'S LIVER THAT MAKES YOU FEEL SO WRETCHED

Wake Up Your Liver Bile and Get A New Lease of Life. No Calomel Is Necessary.

For you to feel healthy and happy, your liver must pour two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels, every day of your life.

Without that bile, trouble starts promptly. Your food just won't digest the way it should and your bowels are sluggish. Food decays inside you and your entire system is undermined by this poisonous waste matter. You have Indigestion—the discomfort of gas, bloating, heartburn and sourness. You are prey to headaches. Have a tongue like cotton-wool, a nasty taste in your mouth, bad breath and ugly skin. You haven't anything like the pep a healthy person should have. In fact you are generally wretched.

How can you expect to clear up a condition like this completely by taking mere bowel-movers like salts, mineral water, oil, laxative candy or chewing gum, or roughage? They can't wake up your liver bile!

Avoid calomel (mercury). Buy yourself a box of old reliable Carter's Little Liver Pills. All vegetable, sure, gentle, safe. They'll wake up your liver without upsetting you. Bring back the glad-to-be-alive feeling, once more.

Don't waste your money on substitutes. Be definite. Ask for Carter's by name and get them. Look for the name, Carter's, on the red label. 25c at all druggists. 47

"The Tangle"

A Novel by

H. LAWRENCE PHILLIPS

Author of "Cap'n Benny" and "A Friendless Millionaire"

"Look here, Inspector," called Manson, pointing to the marks on the woodwork.

"Phew! a jemmy; then it is burglary!" the Inspector commented.

"Looks like it; but what was locked up so carefully? See, the lock is a Chubb," replied Manson, as he endeavored to get the door open. It had stuck in some way, and he had to insert the blade of his knife and use some force before he succeeded. But when he had done so, and the cupboard at last was opened to reveal its contents, both he and his companion uttered an exclamantion of surprise!

CHAPTER VI

The cupboard exhibited a similar condition of disorder to that which was observable everywhere. Clothes taken from their pegs and shelves were tossed aside anyhow, as though they had been hastily inspected and as hastily dropped. It was not this, however, that surprised the two men; it was the fact that all the garments were masculine ones!

"Miss Debnam seems to have collected a thorough-going man's outfit," was the Inspector's comment. Manson preserved a perplexed silence, and his boyish-looking face took on a fresh appearance, that made one realize that there was much more in the man than appeared on the surface. He removed the garments one by one in a methodical manner, studying each one carefully, and growing more and more thoughtful in the process.

"I think," he remarked at last," that it will be well to take careful note of the cut and color of these things; you might find it useful later on."

The Inspector looked an inquiry.

"Oh, it's only an idea of mine. But you can do that later; we'll go off into the other rooms and see what they have to tell us."

They found Mrs. Chubb waiting patiently on the landing, and asked her to point out Mrs. Lisle's room. This proved to be on the opposite side, and they quickly entered it.

Here was all the femininity that they had missed in Miss Debnam's room, and both men felt a choke of the throat as they remembered that the creator of this daintiness lay dead—murdered—in the next room. But the destructive hand of the murderer had been more active than ever here—the room was littered with the clothing and other belongings of the dead woman. As in the other room, the drawers had been turned out, and their contents left on the floor. The doors of the wardrobe were wide open, and the dainty frocks hung there tossed carelessly out; the bedclothes were all disarranged, and pillows and mattress slashed open; and the contents of the cupboard lumped on the floor.

Manson was regarding thoughtfully a little heap of white powder scattered on the floor.

"Evidently Mrs. Lisle helped Nature with her complexion," said the Inspector, with a badly-timed attempt at jocosity.

"Yes, but why?" began his companion, half to himself. He picked up the glass jar which had evidently held the powder, and after a small search in the litter found the cover.

"A screw top, you see!" he remarked, as he fitted it in position.

"Yes, yes, anyone can see that; but what then?"

"That's rather a big theory to build upon such a small foundation, isn't it?"

"Remember the jemmy marks in the other room, and consider them in connection with these other facts," responded Manson, setting down the jar, which he had been handling very carefully, and fumbling in his pockets. He produced at last a small but powerful magnifying glass, and taking the jar up again with the same care, he carefully examined it all over, and then said, with a sort of quiet exultation, "And I think, moreover, that our friend wore gloves; look at the jar through this glass—be careful how you handle it."

Some of the powder was on the outside of the jar, and Ritter saw there the marks to which Manson had called his attention.

"It looks like it. I take it that they are not the marks made by Mrs. Lisle using the thing when she had her gloves on."

"Much too big for that, I fancy."

"I suppose that you are right," said the Inspector, with a sort of grudging acquiescence; "but anyway, I don't see that it gets me much 'forrarder."

"Let us examine the other rooms. I fancy that we have not yet learnt all that this house has to tell us."

The examination of the other rooms produced disappointment, for they were unfurnished, and contained nothing beyond some boxes and packing cases. Manson looked disappointed, but without making any remark led the way downstairs.

Here the dining-room and domestic offices were subjected to a minute search which rendered the Inspector rather impatient.

"What are you taking so much trouble about? I think that we have gone over the place carefully enough. I had better make out my report for my Chief, and can't waste any more time."

They were standing in the hall as he spoke, and Manson was looking around in an abstracted kind of manner.

"Well, get on with it if you like, only I should like to moon around a bit longer. By the way, can you get hold of any tracing paper?"

"Tracing paper?" began the puzzled Inspector.

"Aye. I want to get those marks registered. And I think you had better arrange to have them carefully photographed as well. They are rather important, though I can't for the life of me understand their meaning. If they were only a man's print it would be a fairly easy guess, but the woman's beats me," Manson concluded, rubbing his curly head in a perplexed manner.

The Inspector was preparing to go when Manson, who had been gazing around, his face still wearing the look of perplexity, exclaimed suddenly—

"Let me have your tape measure."

The Inspector looked surprised, but handed it to him in silence, and his companion, giving him one end, began to measure the width of the hall, and, jotting down the figures, took the wondering Ritter into dining-room and drawing-room, subjecting them to the same process.

"Now come upstairs," commanded Manson.

Entering the two bedrooms with his companion, he ran the tape from the wall opposite to the cupboards to their depths, again noting the figures; and comparing them with those of the ground floor, he uttered a cry of satisfaction.

"I wondered if that was it," he exclaimed.

"If it was what?" asked Ritter, completely in the dark.

"There is a difference of three feet in the two totals."

"What then?"

They were in Mrs. Lisle's room as they spoke, and Manson began clearing out the cupboard, which was a fairly deep one.

"I think that the difference lies behind that," he said, pointing to the panelled back.

The Inspector grasped his meaning and whistled.

"A secret cupboard?" he asked.

"I think it very likely," was the answer of Manson, as he tapped and probed the woodwork, searching carefully every inch.

Ritter watched the process attentively.

"It does not sound hollow to me."

"Nor to me. But I intend to look behind. Run your fingers over this." Manson pointed to the beveling, and the Inspector felt around it.

"It isn't a close fit, is it?" he agreed.

"No, but I can't find out how it opens. It must slide into the wall, I fancy."

Sister Mary's Kitchen

By SISTER MARY

Perhaps there is no time of year when the appetite is so jaded and in need of healthful stimulants to a natural hunger as in the spring time.

The foods which were perfectly legitimate for us to eat when we needed energy for resisting cold should be put aside and fruits, vegetables, cheese, eggs and fish used in abundance.

Tart foods such as grapefruit and rhubarb are especially desirable since they have a tendency to whip the appetite into action. Pickles, usually considered indigestible and taboo, are found valuable for their piquancy and appetite provoking qualities.

Lemon sauces, tartar sauces and horseradish sauces whet the appetite and food value to the meal.

Foods rich in iron will do much to overcome "spring fever" and should be used freely.

WATCH YOUR IRON SUPPLY

A study of many dietaries shows them to be lacking in iron, carefully selected though they may be. Too little iron in blood and tissues causes them to misbehave. The external indications of this internal "misbehavior" are apparent in poor color, listlessness and lack of vigor—"spring fever."

Spinach has the highest iron content of any of the vegetables and, of course, is rich in vitamins, but there are other spring vegetables that are splendid sources of mineral salts and vitamins.

Dandelion greens, beet greens, mint and asparagus are in season and offer variety.

Radishes, spring onions and carrots are valuable raw foods and should be used frequently.

ENDIVE SPRING FAVORITE

Endive with its slightly bitter taste is relished at this time of year and new cabbage with a lemon dressing is preferred to the rich cream dressing of the winter months.

Fruits and vegetables must be relied upon to furnish the necessary iron grams and keep the body "fit." Bulky foods that will give the digestive tract its much needed exercise are essential. Nearly all fruits and vegetables are mineral rich foods and have a decided tonic-like effect.

Uncle Wiggily and the Dog's Bone

By HOWARD R. GARIS

"Do you think it's dry enough now?" asked the spotted dog as he looked at the gobs of mud which Willie the Worm had plastered all over him. "Take a look, Uncle Wiggily."

So the rabbit gentleman took a look at the dog who was very funny, indeed, all covered with mud to hide his spots, and then Uncle Wiggily twinkled his pink nose and said:

"I shall have to brush the mud off one of your spots to see if it is dry enough to come off easily and take the spot with it."

"Please do that," barked the dog. "And," he went on, "I do hope I get rid of my spots."

"Willie said you would," spoke Mr. Longears. "And that little worm boy always tells the truth. Well, we shall soon know."

So the rabbit gentleman carefully brushed the dried mud off a spot on the dog's side, a place where the dog, whose name was Rover, would have found it hard to reach himself with either leg. And as the dried mud dropped off in a sort of powder, Rover asked:

"Is the spot gone?"

"It certainly is," said Mr. Longears. "There is no spot here."

"Try another place," barked Rover, so excited that his tail went around in a circle like a Fourth of July pinwheel, instead of wagging from side to side or up and down. "Oh, what joy if all my spots are gone" he chuckled happily.

And, surely enough, beneath that mud another spot had gone. Then the dog began rolling over and over in the grass, wiping off all the dried mud, and when he had finished he was no longer a spotted dog but plain colored; sort of brown, like a pancake.

"Oh, what a lovely color I am!" barked the dog as he looked at himself in a spring of clear water, like a mirror, near the mud puddle.

"Willie the Worm was right," said Uncle Wiggily. "He told you he would get rid of your spots for you and he did."

"Yes, he did," said Rover. "And I am very thankful to him. If he were here I would thank him." But Willie the Worm had crawled away.

As I told you in the story before this, Uncle Wiggily had met Willie the Worm when Charlie the Rooster was trying to catch the crawling chap. Uncle Wiggily made Charlie promise not to bother Willie any more and then along came Rover who wanted to get rid of his spots.

Willie said by plastering the spots with mud, waiting for it to dry and then brushing it off, the dog's spots would disappear. And that's just what had happened.

"I suppose you are very happy now, Rover, since you are no longer spotted," said Uncle Wiggily as he and the dog walked along together.

"I am very happy," barked the dog. "There are only two things that I want now. One is to be striped like a zebra in a circus and the other is to find a juicy bone, with a hole in it, to gnaw."

"I don't see what good it would do you to gnaw a hole," said the rabbit gentleman, laughing.

"I don't want to gnaw the hole," spoke Rover. "But a bone with a hole in it is the best kind to gnaw when I am hungry. I am hungry now, so I would like a bone of that sort."

"I think," said Uncle Wiggily, twinkling his pink nose again, "that it will be easier for you to find a bone than it will to become striped like a zebra in the circus."

"I guess so," said the dog. "It was easy, with the help of Willie the Worm, and his mud, to get rid of my spots. But it isn't going to be easy to get stripes in place of the spots. As you say, it may be easier to find a bone. Do you know where there is one?"

"Not exactly," said the rabbit gentleman. "But I'll help you look for one. Come on. I may find an adventure or a carrot."

"They aren't the same, are they?" asked the dog.

"Of course, they aren't," chuckled Mr. Longears. "A carrot is something I eat as you gnaw a bone. An adventure is something jolly that happens to you."

"Well, let's go look for my bone, if you don't mind," barked the once spotted dog. "And then I'll help you look for an adventure and a carrot. I don't much care for carrots myself, but they are good in soup. And, speaking of soup, a bone is very good for that."

"So Nurse Jane has often said," spoke Mr. Longears.

Then he and the dog who was once spotted set off over the fields and through the woods to look for a bone. They had not gone very far before, all of a sudden, the dog began to sniff and to snuff and he pointed with one paw like a bird dog, and said:

"I smell a bone! Look! I see a fine, dandy, juicy bone with a hole in it under that bush. Come on! Help me get it!"

And just then something happened. I'll tell you about it to-morrow night when the story will be Uncle Wiggily Helping the Bob Cat. And please ask the cake of soap to hold an umbrella over the goldfish when it takes a bath to keep it from catching cold.

•TESTED RECIPES OF TEMPTING INTEREST•

SIMPLE SAVORY

Start with sausages...

Sausages, sliced onions, canned tomato soup. Place in baking dish the required number of sausages, previously browned with onions and a cup (or less) of tomato soup. Season and put on to cook while you mix the following: 1 cup flour, 1 teaspoon baking powder, ½ teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon Colman's Mustard, 1 egg, 1 cup milk. Beat this mixture well and pour over the partially cooked sausages. Bake until nicely browned—and there you are.

A really delicious and nourishing luncheon for four people—at reasonable cost. Simple Savory makes possible a real economy in the family food budget. And its flavour, so subtly appealing, will be the cause of much favourable comment—provided you have not overlooked that ¼ teaspoon of Colman's Mustard in the recipe.

Wonders of the Heavens

THE BIG DIPPER

If you should go to Argentina to spend a vacation, I feel sure that you would notice changes in the star-filled sky. Many star groups which you are in the custom of seeing at night cannot be seen in Argentina, South Africa or Australia.

Diagram showing how the Big Dipper in four positions, has "pointer stars" which will help you find the North Star

Perhaps most of all, you would miss the Big Dipper. This famous star group is a common sight in our part of the world; but it is not seen by people living in the places I have named.

Look at the Big Dipper, and think of some of the things which it means. It was seen by people in ancient Greece, and a fancy about it appears in an old Greek story.

The stars in the Big Dipper are part of those which the Greeks said made up the Big Bear. The handle of the dipper was supposed to be the tail o the bear. Another name given to th Big Dipper is the Plow.

If planets go around stars in th Big Dipper, and if people live on tho planets, we may be certain that the do not think of that star group forming the picture of a dipper or plough. We see such figures becau of the angle from which we look them.

When you view a star through telescope, you find that its shape round. That is true of planets as we Stars in a flag may have five point but not the stars in the sky. Tru stars give their own light, and flame rise from their surface; but to mak any star five-pointed is a work fancy.

As we gaze at the Big Dipper, observe seven stars; but if we use opera glass or telescope we can that one of the stars is "double." Tw stars, close together, appear to o eyes as a single star.

The stars in the Big Dipper a moving, but they are so many trillio of miles away from us that we notic no change in the course of a yea Scientists declare that the double-st and four others are moving in o direction while the star at the end the handle and one other (the upp "pointer star") are moving in th opposite direction. People who live o earth 50,000 years from now will s a different shape in this star group,

TREASURE SHIP HUNT RENEWED

Debraake Sank in 1789 With Millions of Dollars of Gold

Baltimore, April 13.—The search for the treasure ship Debraake, which sank with millions of dollars' worth of gold aboard in 1789, is scheduled to be resumed May 1.

A Baltimore salvage company representing the treasure-hunting syndicate announced to-day that a special salvage ship, the Captain Drew, will be ready for the sea by that time.

The hulk of the Debraake, an old British sloop of war, is believed to have lain rotting on the ocean bottom off Cape Henlopen, Del., for nearly a century and a half. She capsized and foundered there during a squall.

The gold estimated to be on the sloop has been estimated at between $4,000,000 and $10,000,000.

Three New Yorkers will accompany the Captain Drew as representatives of the syndicate. They are Alfred E. Jordan, Mayor of Great Neck Estates, L.I.; Alan C. Robertson and Perry King. The salvage ship, which was named for the captain of the Debraake, will be commanded by Captain J. W. Wickstrom of Baltimore.

A salvage crew was believed to have located the hulk definitely and charted its resting place during operations last year. The search was halted in December by bad weather and postponed until the return of spring and the completion of the Captain Drew.

IN NEW FEATURE AT DOMINION

Janet Gaynor and Lew Ayres, who have two of the leading roles in "State Fair," now showing at the Dominion Theatre.

RACING DRAMA AT PLAYHOUSE

For the "second Ascot" of 1931 some hundreds of supers were engaged to play in "Lady Panniford's Folly," the Edgar Wallace racing drama made by Gainsborough and British Lion at the Beaconsfield studios of the latter company, and being shown to-day at the Playhouse Theatre.

The selection of the supers was made at the Regent Street offices of a firm of film agents. The supers overflowed; every room upstairs and downstairs was crowded; an arcade off Regent Street was filled with a treble queue of girls wearing Ascot dresses, and praying that rain would hold off.

The Ascot ball, which is held annually at Great Fosters, at Egham, was reproduced at the Beaconsfield studios, where T. Hayes Hunter directed the talking picture translation of Edgar Wallace's turf play. The set covered the entire floor space and took forty-eight hours to erect.

DOMINION THEATRE

Truth aids fiction in "State Fair," the prize novel by Phil Stong on which Fox Film's all-star picture of the same name is based, and which is showing at the Dominion Theatre.

The story concerns the loves and adventures of four members of a farm family at a Midwest state fair, and Stong is intimately acquainted with his characters and locale. He was raised in a rural community such as he describes in his book and as a newspaper reporter "covered" many state fairs.

With one exception, the characters played in the Fox picture by Janet Gaynor, Will Rogers, Lew Ayres, Sally Eilers, Norman Foster, Frank Craven, Louise Dresser and Victor Jory are fictional but they represent authentic types. The exception is the country storekeeper portrayed by Craven. That storekeeper in real life is E. L. Stong, the author's uncle and the proprietor of a rural general merchandising establishment

TOSHIA MORI CAPITOL STAR

Diminutive Oriental Lady Has Leading Role in "The Bitter Tea of General Yen"

Toshia Mori—pronounced "Toe-shee-ah Mor-ee"—a nineteen-year-old resident of Los Angeles Chinatown, was discovered behind the counter of a curio store there by Director Frank Capra and was signed immediately to play the colorful role of the beautiful Mah-li in Columbia's picturization of "The Bitter Tea of General Yen," from Grace Zaring Stone's best selling novel. It is showing to-day at the Capitol Theatre.

This role is by all odds the finest Chinese characterization ever offered any girl in the movies. Miss Mori's role is secondary only to those enacted by Barbara Stanwyck and Nils Asther, the two leads in the picture.

Miss Mori is five feet tall and weighs exactly 100 pounds. She has enormous dark eyes, pronounced red lips and wears her coal black hair in an oriental bang.

Also showing is William Collier Jr. in the "Speed Demon."

STUDENTS OPPOSE BEARING ARMS

College Poll Shows 52 Per Cent Would Fight Only in Case of an Invasion

Eight Per Cent Ready For Any War, 4 Per Cent to Protect Investments

New York, April 13.—Final tabulations of the five-day poll on war, conducted on the Morningside Heights campus by The Columbia Spectator, student daily newspaper, showed that, with a total of 920 students voting, 52 per cent would bear arms only in case of an invasion, while 50 per cent would be willing to "suffer imprisonment for the sake of their convictions."

Only 8 per cent of the students said that they would fight "under any circumstances," while 31 per cent said that they would take up arms "under no circumstances." Four per cent said they would bear arms to protect the lives of their country's citizens or investments abroad, and more than 53 per cent attributed their objections to bearing arms to the fact that "war can never be justified."

Freshmen led with the number of ballots cast with 226, the class of 1934 followed with 219, sophomores ranked third with 208 votes and the senior class fourth with 173. Thirty-five votes cast were unclassified.

Final tabulation on the war poll was as follows:

Would fight under any circumstances	81
Would bear arms under no circumstances	293
Would fight in case of invasion	484
Would fight to protect citizens or investments abroad	38
Would bear arms for other reasons not formally cited	24
Would suffer imprisonment for sake of convictions	464

TOM MIX PLAYS AT COLUMBIA

Action, pictorial and feminine beauty, and a "different" western story are the outstanding features of Tom Mix's latest picture, "Flaming Guns," the Peter B. Kyne epic, which opened to-day at the Columbia Theatre.

This latest Mix vehicle, from the opening, where Tom appears as an ex-sergeant of infantry during the World War, to the end, is a whirlwind of action.

There is a spectacular stampede of cattle when Tom outwits the outlaws and captures them single-handed. Later, there is a stampede of motorcycle policemen when they try to prevent Tom's elopement.

EMPIRE THEATRE

"The Lodger" in the "silent" days of the picture house was remarkably popular. It was then directed by a young man who, to-day, has many successes to his credit. The story has now been adapted to the talking screen. Mrs. Belloc Lowndes wrote the story, which has been modernized. Ivor Novello again plays the title role. The picture is being screened at the Empire Theatre to-day.

COMING TO EMPIRE

Winifred Shotter is one of the protagonists in the triangular duel raging throughout the merry story played out in "The Love Contract," opening tomorrow at the Empire Theatre. She is Antoinette, lady chauffeur to Neville Carrington (Owen Nares), a financier interested in Mrs. Savage (Sunday Wilshins). The charming attentions of the man, as well as his financial position, attract Mrs. Savage and Antoinette determines to use her position to spoil the vamp's little game. Carrington, now that his chauffeur has come into his life, is anxious to break with the vamp, but does not exactly know how to do so. Antoinette, however, is full of resource and paves the way.

Explanation for Young Man's Entry of Two Jacks Given; Sentenced to Six Months

This was revealed in the City Police Court this morning when Sutton pleaded guilty to a charge of breaking and entering the premises with intent to commit theft. He was sentenced by Acting Magistrate C. J. Prior to serve six months with hard labor.

Birthday Greetings Are Extended To-day To—

JOE ADDISON
J. R. WATERS
MRS. K. H. SMITH

JOE ADDISON

Joe Addison, one of the promising quarter milers in the Canadian West and outstanding British Columbia century and furlong dash man, figuratively started to reel off another lap in life's race to-day. Joe has been showing prowess on the track ever since he was in grade school. Some years ago the meet at the Willows used to bring together Joseph Addison and Oliver Goldsmith, while an official by the name of Shakespeare looked on. In Victoria High School he ran through to the aggregate championship in the running events and then swept through all junior opposition while performing for Archie McKinnon's flying Y squad. He missed the Canadian Olympic trials in Hamilton by a fraction of a second last year in British Columbia's tryouts, but bids fair to chip his time down this season. Joe is also well-known for his speed on the rugby field. He has held down a regular berth on the James Bay Athletic Association, senior city championship squad, and has played on the Victoria rep team, scoring for each fifteen. In less rugged realms, he is noted for his skill as an adagio dancer.

J. R. "Jack" Waters is celebrating his birthday to-day. He is proprietor of the British Welding Company. He spends a great deal of his leisure time fishing and hunting and is an enthusiastic football and baseball fan.

Mrs. K. H. Smith, 144 Eberts Street, is receiving birthday congratulations from many friends to-day.

Pay Last Tribute To Mrs. Cherry

Many sorrowing friends attended the services held yesterday afternoon over the remains of Mrs. Letty Ann Cherry. Rev. Thos. Keyworth conducting the services. The following acted as pallbearers: G. Ball, A. Rhode, J. Trace, A. Lockley, W. T. Phillips and G. A. Burns.

To-day Rotarians were asked to support the presentation of "Christopher Robin at Home," in Victoria High School on April 21 and 22, when a delegate from the University Women's Club, which will sponsor the production, addressed them at luncheon.

The Women's Auxiliary is in charge of the tag day, the proceeds of which will be used among the veterans and their families who are in need, and also for the upkeep of the association's quarters on Blanshard Street. The headquarters for the day will be the Sons of England Hall, Broad Street, where refreshments will be served to the taggers from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. Mrs. Annie Booth, Garden 5039, or Mrs. R. V. LOSS OF FRY FISH PROBLEM

Unaccountable Destruction of Young Is Question in Conservation, Club Told

Research Work Into B.C. Industry Reviewed to Rotarians By W. Clemens

The greatest problem facing conservation of British Columbia's salmon lay in overcoming the undetermined causes which resulted in loss of fry and eggs in fresh waters, Wilbert Clemens of the Biological Station at Departure Bay told members of the Rotary Club at their luncheon in the Empress Hotel to-day.

In this connection he described the research work being conducted at Cultus Lake where the number of young fish coming from natural spawning and the planting of eggs was being determined. So far experimentation had shown one method to be about equally as successful as the other. But neither had exceeded 5 per cent of the eggs deposited in the tributary streams leading into the lakes.

It was fitting to speak upon the work being done at Departure Bay, since 1933 marked the twenty-fifth anniversary of the establishment of the institution, Mr. Clemens said. He showed slides of the establishment set up in 1908.

DO NOT FOLLOW STREAM

Briefly he described work being done in the Gulf of Georgia, at the mouth of the Fraser River. The belief that salmon followed the fresh water stream from the outpouring of the Fraser in the gulf was generally discounted now, he said, since the fresh water formed in a pond at the top of the salt and did not extend any distance in the form of a stream.

In 1929, the speaker said, the value of Canada's fisheries was estimated at $53,000,000, while in British Columbia 20,000 men were engaged in the industry which that year was estimated at $24,000,000. He briefly sketched the halibut and pilchard industries, as well as work being done to improve the propagation of Japanese oysters imported into British Columbia beds.

Mr. Clemens described the various kinds of salmon, remarking the Sockeye was considered the most valuable, with Spring second and Cohoe, Pink and Chum, each enjoying a part in the industry.

MUST BALANCE CATCH

He referred to the problem of determining how many fish should be caught in order that the catch might balance with the escapement and ensure a continued supply of fry for future years.

In some detail he gave the life history of the different fish, sketching their development from eggs in the lakes, their sojourn in fresh waters, their runs to the sea and return to fresh water at maturity. Maturity in the sockeye was reached in from three to eight years, in the cohoe at three and in the pink around two.

By tagging fish caught by trollers and by receiving the tags back from those who caught the salmon after they had been liberated, their movements could be determined, he said. Some tags had shown the journeys of springs as far as 800 miles to the south. The tagging process also indicated the routes of runs, he said.

TELL FISH'S AGE

Showing slides of scales, the speaker outlined the method of telling a fish's age and its period in fresh and salt water.

Dealing with runs, Mr. Clemens stated it was now possible to predict fairly accurately the heaviness or lightness of the fish movements up certain rivers to spawning grounds.

Closing he displayed a number of interesting pictures of fishery work, showing screens used to stop fry from salt water migration, ponds, methods of planting eggs and various rivers where salmon ran heavily.

The object of the biological station's research in this field lay chiefly in trying to bring scientific knowledge to the aid of the industry in the conservation of supply, he concluded.

St. Martin's Anglican Young People's Association held its regular business meeting in the parish hall on Monday. At the conclusion of the meeting the "Harmonica Ramblers" entertained the group and their friends from St. Columba's branch. It is the intention of the two branches to stage a joint programme in the near future, details of which will be announced later. The harmonica selections of Herbert Stark and a humorous one-act play staged by the dramatic committee under the convenership of Charles Lewis were very much enjoyed. The meeting of April 24 is to be followed by a programme of motion pictures.

GROUNDS FOR POLO SOUGHT

Development of Fashionable Sport Planned in Victoria This Summer

Development of polo as one of Victoria's major summer sports is the objective of a group of enthusiasts who are now preparing for the season.

Application has been made to the parks committee of the City Council for use of one of the fields in Beacon Hill Park, west of the cricket pitch, for the matches.

Lack of grounds is one of the difficulties facing the sponsors of the game. Last year four matches were played at the Willows oval, but this ground is now under repair, and the site in Beacon Hill has been suggested as a suitable field.

Three matches have been tentatively arranged to date, and it is expected others will be played during the season. In addition to the "All Blues" formed of a group of private enthusiasts, military and police teams are expected to take part.

Golf in Canada Comes in For Praise; Victoria Links Mentioned

TORONTO Maple Leafs are still in the running for the world professional hockey championship. Tuesday night the Leafs, with loss of the Stanley Cup staring them in the face, put on a brilliant exhibition of hockey to nose out the New York aRngers by the odd goal in five and score their first victory in the finals. The count now stands two games to one in favor of Lester Patrick's Gotham club, with the fourth game this evening. As is often the case in a championship tilt, a second-rater played the leading role in the Toronto victory, in the person of diminutive Ken Doraty, winger on one of the secondary forward lines. Doraty has been one of the leading scorers for the Leafs in the playoffs, driving home the only goal to give Toronto a win over Boston in the fifth and deciding game of the league championship series.

* * *

Doraty failed to show a great deal with Toronto throughout the league season, and a few months before the closing of the schedule he was sent to Syracuse, and Dave Downie of that club was tried out by the Leafs. However, Downie failed to make the grade and was hustled back to the farm club and Doraty resumed his place on the Toronto line-up. Ever since he has been going over big, and at the present time is rated one of the most dangerous of the Toronto forwards. Doraty played with Regina and Portland in the P.C.H.A. In finals of many sports it is often the rookie or second-string player who comes through, while the star performers fade into the background. "Pepper" Martin's great performance for the St. Louis Cardinals in the world baseball series of 1931 is a good example.

With the curtain definitely lowered on Victoria's rugby for the 1932-33 season, all that now remains for the boys who boot and carry the ball is their annual dance and prize presentation at the Shrine Auditorium on Monday evening.

Following last Saturday's game, in which the Fifth Brigade defeated the James Bay Athletic Association, city champions, for the Cowichan Cup emblematic of knockout league championship, Denny Diespecker rises to voice his happiness.

"I've been connected with the Fifth for twenty years, off and on, and at last we've won something," he remarks.

And down at St. Joseph's Hospital, Johnny Rowland, recovering from his serious injury early in the season, hobbled to a telephone to congratulate Charlie Morton and Doug Roberts for their splendid coaching in bringing the team along to its present place in the space of two seasons.

A summary for the year shows Victoria again in possession of the McKechnie Cup, inter-city championship, and a half interest in the British Columbia senior B title. On the other hand, the long sought provincial championship rests in the hands of Vancouver's North Shore All-Blacks. The box score reads—Three times at bat, two hits, two runs and one error.

"Canada, which last year furnished the winner of the United States amateur golf championship in the person of C. Ross "Sandy" Sommerville, was almost sure to win that honor sooner or later because, next to hockey, golf is the most popular sport in the Dominion. Last year industries located in Canada and producing sporting equipment of various kinds turned out $1,000,000 worth of golf clubs alone. This is not as strange as it appears, because Canada was really the cradle of golf in North America. The first record of golfing in Canada goes back to 1826, when William Dibman, a sailor from Glasgow, Scotland, finding himself in Quebec, carried his clubs to the Plains of Abraham and there entertained himself with golf in solitary contentment.

"The first effort to put golf on an organized basis, however, was made in 1873, when a group of Montreal business men met and organized the Montreal Golf Club, and it has maintained a continuous and uninterrupted existence since. It is now known as the Royal Montreal Golf Club. Two years later a club was formed in Quebec City, and in 1876 one was formed in Toronto. These two clubs are also in existence and flourishing. In those early days there were no clubhouses on the courses and the members frequently took picnic baskets with them and lunched under the trees.

"Winnipeg now claims to be the greatest golfing city in North America. With a population of 280,000, Winnipeg boasts of twenty-seven golf courses.

* * *

"Even in the heart of the Rocky Mountains there are golf courses, the most famous being that in Jasper National Park, where the Canadian amateur championship matches were played in 1928. This excellent eighteen-hole layout has a variety of one, two and three-shot holes that cannot be surpassed anywhere. The putting areas are unusually large and well-contoured. Each hole has three large all-grass tees. The course is well trapped, and the entire layout is extremely interesting to low and high-handicap players alike.

"Another beautiful course of championship length and standard in the Rocky Mountains is the one at Banff Springs. A most attractive layout, indeed.

"Many championship and scenic courses are to be found in Victoria and Vancouver. In fact, over the Shaughnessy Heights course, in Vancouver, the Canadian amateur championship will be decided in July; and over the Oak Bay course of the Victoria Golf Club the Pacific Northwest championships (men's and women's) will be decided in June. The event in Vancouver will mark the first time it has been held west of Jasper Park."

Muzz Patrick and Chuck Chapman Star In 35-28 Victory

Former Crashes Through Alberta Champions to Score Fifteen Points

Second Fixture To-morrow Night

Ribbons After Taking Early Lead Are Never Headed; 1,200 Attend

Victoria Blue Ribbons today had a leg up on the Western Canada senior men's basketball championship as a result of their brilliant 35 to 28 victory over the Raymond Union Jacks, Alberta titleholders, in the opening game of the best two out of three game series at the Willows yesterday evening. With an estimated crowd of 1,200 present the Ribbons, British Columbia's representatives in the Canadian play-downs, smashed through the veterans from Alberta to chalk up a hard-fought win.

The second game will be played at the Willows to-morrow night, and if a third game is necessary, it will be staged Saturday evening. After their exhibition in the opener the Ribbons are favored to take the series in two straight games, although the Jacks are worthy opponents and will play all out in an effort to carry the series to three games.

GREAT DEFENCE PLAY

The Ribbons won mainly through their airtight defensive play. The Victoria players checked the Albertans to a standstill with Chuck Chapman, giant Victoria guard, turning in one of finest games ever witnessed on a local floor. He broke up attack after attack and his speedy passes more than once launched the Victoria forwards on scoring movements. Chapman was the big worry to the fast Raymond front line and they found extreme difficulty getting by him. Joe Ross was a capable partner for Chapman and his heady checking played no small part in the Victoria victory, not forgetting a couple of baskets that came in handy at a critical moment.

The local offensive was led by Muzz Patrick who found the hoop for fifteen points, six field goals and three free shots. Muzz was the only one of the first string Victoria forwards to display his regular form. Johnny Craig, substitute forward, performed in a steady maner and his four points were valuable.

After taking the lead in the first minute of play the Ribbons were never on the short end of the score, although the Jacks succeeded the deadlocking the score at 16 to 16 early in the second half, only to have the Ribbons move ahead again and remain in front.

FINE SHOOTING

Members of the Union Jacks were deadly in scoring free throws, twelve of their twenty-eight points being secured from fouls. Victoria secured seven points in this manner.

Before the start of the game the two teams were introduced to the fans by Alderman Adam.

The Ribbons opened with Joe Ross and Chuck Chapman as guards, Art Chapman at centre and Muzz and Lynn Patrick as forwards. The Union Jacks started Dean Rolfson and Donald Nilsson on the back line, Sam Fairbanks at centre and Reed Kirkham and Dick O'Brien as forwards.

Ribbons secured from the tip-off and Ross went in fast under the Raymond hoop to toss in the opening basket of the series. Muzz Patrick took a pass from brother Lynn and made no mistake with his close-in shot and followed it with a free throw, awarded for hacking by Fairbanks, giving Victoria a 5 to 0 lead. O'Brien looped in a long one from the side of the court for Raymond's first points, his effort getting a good hand from the crowd. Muzz Patrick eluded his check to again work in close and take a pass from Art Chapman to convert. Lynn Patrick was fouled by Nilsson and caged one of the two free throws, to give Victoria an 8 to 2 margin. Ribbons worked the ball around with short, quick passes with a man dodging in close on the first opening. Muzz Patrick broke away for the third time and took Art Chapman's pass to put the Ribbons in the lead 10 to 2. The spectators gave the sniping young forward lots of applause as the teams lined up for the centre jump. Union Jack rallied and O'Brien scored a backhander. Patrick countered with a free throw to make the visitors' total five. Muzz Patrick countered with a fre throw and the Ribbons again had their eight-point lead.

PLAYERS NERVOUS

At this stage both teams started passing a little wild, the players appearing nervous. Lynn Patrick dropped in a free throw without touching the hoop and at this stage the Ribbons called time out. With twelve minutes elapsed they were leading 14 to 5. Ribbons substituted Johnny Craig for Ross. This move appeared to have a demoralizing effect on the local club and Raymond launched a terrific offensive. Kirkham scored two free shots and Fairbanks was left open under the basket and Raymond had crept up to within five points. Kirkham made it 14 to 11 and Victoria rushed on Tommy Little for Craig. Two

CAGE CAPERS

Basketball-conscious as they have never been before, Victoria's citizenery turned out very well yesterday evening to see the Blue Ribbons take the opening game of the first Western Canada play-off series ever staged in the city. It was a fair game considering what was at stake and the fact that the boys had never played against each other before. The fans are looking for a better exhibition to-morrow evening when the squads clash in the second and what may be final fixture in the best two-out-of-three series. Both teams seemed to be slightly under their best form on the big, strange court yesterday evening.

* * *

It looked like Citizens' Day at the fair just inside the exhibition ground gates, with a line-up of cars that stretched completely around the roadway inside the enclosure. The attendence figures were said to reach 1,200, three-fifths as large as the entire population of the Jack's home town.

* * *

Not the least impressive feature of the programme was the period of silence observed by players and spectators in respectful memory of the members of the Winnipeg Toilers, killed in the air crash two weeks ago, and the late John Galt, who was former president of the Blue Ribbon Co., backers of the local champions. The silence was so intense the opening of a creaking door by some unconscious intruder could be heard all over the huge building.

* * *

"Pirats" in the game follow:
First play from tip-off, Raymond.
First unsuccessful shot, Raymond.
First field goal, Joe Ross, Blue Ribbons.
First converted free throw, Muzz Patrick, Blue Ribbons.
First foul, Sam Fairbanks, Raymond.
First player banished for "personals," Nilsson, Raymond.
First victory, Victoria Blue Ribbons.

And it was the first western play-off ever held here and the first in which a local team has competed.

* * *

It was a wonderful sight to watch rangy Chuck Chapman, ace of the city's defence players, pull down Raymond's high passes from all parts of the air.

* * *

The Ribbons smart tip-off play—Art Chapman to Lynn Patrick to Muzz Patrick and occasionally back to Chapman—worked nicely at the opening of the game as the locals ran up a 13 to 5 lead. As the game developed Fairbanks, the Raymond's centre, outjumped Art Chapman at the tip-off, which surprised the local fans.

* * *

The Jacks showed smart work under Victoria's basket, picking up rebounds regularly, but they had difficulty in scoring. They also gave the local boys an artistic exhibition of scoring on free throws.

* * *

It looked bad for the Ribbons about fifteen minutes after the start when Raymond staged a great rally to bring the score up to 13 to 14.

* * *

The fans could not understand why forward Johnny Craig was sent in to relieve Joe Ross as guard when the Raymond rally started.

* * *

Tommy Macedo played a piccollo solo at half time, trying to quieten the fans to announce the official, but the house would not be subdued. Even supporters would not have permitted announcement as they strove to drown out the boos.

* * *

Raymond played the entire first half without substitution.

* * *

* * *

Johnny Craig deserved the big hand he received when he went in as forward and turned in the most unselfish performance of the evening.

* * *

One of the outstanding plays of the evening was seen when the giant Chuck Chapman jumped in a throw-up and slapped the ball down the floor to his brother Art, who flipped it over to Muzz Patrick and "curly locks" dropped it into the hoop. The entire play only took three seconds to complete, and was a fine bit of generalship on the part of Chuck, skipper of the Ribbons.

* * *

No foot-warmers were needed in the building yesterday evening. Last Saturday when the Ribbons played the Vancouver All-Stars it was so cold the fans went home with their feet frost-bitten. But the excitement yesterday evening was enough to warm an Eskimo who had lost his shirt.

* * *

* * *

The Jacks played a nice short passing game, but they could not break through the Victoria defence consistently. On the other hand the Ribbons barged through the centre with great speed, Muzz Patrick being unusually successful in this type of play.

* * *

Practically no long shots were tried by the Jacks. They staked everything on getting in under the basket. The Ribbons tried a few pot shots from a distance, the two guards, Joe Ross and Chuck Chapman, on finding all their mates checked and an opening presenting itself, axled the ball and in three cases it went in. One of Chapman's sky balls from centre went through the hoop without even consenting to touch it.

* * *

The visitors are considerably older than the locals and were steadier, their experience in championship games coming in handy particularly in the first half, when they staged a determined rally and came within an ace of tying

Toronto Will Use Boll This Evening

Member of Syracuse Club to Help Leafs in Stanley Cup Hockey

Toronto Victory To-night Will Make Fifth Game Necessary Saturday

Toronto, April 13.—Fertile rookie farm of Syracuse Stars in the International Hockey League that has yielded Bill Thoms, Ken Doraty and Charlie Sands this season, three players who have aided materially in placing Toronto Maple Leafs in the Stanley Cup finals, was harvested for another player to-day, Buzz Boll, fleet left-winger.

Boll will be in a Toronto uniform to-night when New York Rangers make their fourth bid in their attempt to wrest the Stanley Cup from a stubborn Leaf foe. Boll, on loan to Syracuse since the tail end of the 1931-32 season, has been recalled to close the gap left vacant by the absence of Ace Bailey through injuries.

Still with an advantage of 2 to 1 in games, Rangers are in a position where they can force the Leafs to come to them and then take advantage of any "breaks" that may occur in their opponents' wide-open offensive. Toronto will probably play the same hard-hitting game that threw Rangers' fine plays out of joint in the third game.

EXPECT CAPACITY CROWD

A capacity crowd is again indicated for to-night's game. Already more than $100,000 has been taken in from the five playoffs games staged here and if a fifth game should be necessary Saturday a new mark will be established for Toronto play-off gates.

The teams will be as follows:

Toronto—Chabot; Clancy, Horner; Blair, Doraty, Gracie. Subs: Levinsky, Day, Thoms, Primeau, Jackson, Conacher, Boll, Sands, Cotton.

Rangers—Aitkenhead; E. Seibert, Johnson; Boucher, W. Cook, F. Cook. Subs: Heller, Brennan, Murdoch, Dillon, Somers, Osmundson, Pettinger, A. C. Seibert, Keeling.

Officials—Odie Cleghorn and A. G Smith.

Orioles Capture Lone Game in International Baseball From Toronto

The International League's stagger system of inaugurating the 193' baseball season, combined with bad weather, left six of the eight teams still marking time to-day, waiting for the call for the opening game.

Rain yesterday spoiled the season's opener at Albany, where the Senators were to face the Rochester Red Wings.

Inaugural games at Jersey City and Newark, originally scheduled for to-day to avoid conflict with the major league, opened between the Boston Red Sox and the New York Yankees at New York, were set back another day.

In the only game played yesterday, Baltimore Orioles came from behind with a devastating attack to defeat Toronto Maple Leafs, 12 to 7.

Guy Cantrell, Leafs' starting pitcher, personally accounted for six Toronto runs, clearing the loaded bases with a homer in the fourth. He weakened in the next inning, however, and the Orioles found him for three runs, then continued their slugging against

Cambridge Oarsmen May Row in South

Long Beach, Cal., April 13.—England's Cambridge University crew, the Italian Olympic eight and the Navy, Yale, Cornell, Washington, California and University of California crews if to compete in an international regatta the United States have been invited here, July 8, over the tenth Olympic course, civic officials announced yesterday.

It is understood Italy is more than passively interested in having its international games crew make a second appearance in the United States. It lost by a narrow margin to California in the finals of the eight-oared class on the Olympic course here last summer.

TITLE BOUT DATE IS SET

Jack Sharkey, Heavyweight Champion Meets Primo Carnera on June 29

Will Take Place Twenty-one Days After Fight Between Schmeling and Baer

New York, April 13.—A couple of months of jockeying for position in the early summer heavyweight derby came to an end yesterday as Madison Square Garden grabbed June 29 for Jack Sharkey's title defence against Primo Carnera and created one of the most unusual situations in modern ring history.

That date is exactly twenty-one days after Jack Dempsey proposes to pit Max Baer, California, against Max Schmeling, former champion, in the Yankee Stadium, and marks the first time in years two rival promoters have warred to the extent of scheduling two major heavyweight shows within so short a time.

The New York State Athletic Commission, with only chairman John J. Phelan in personal attendance, accepted Jimmy Johnston's request on behalf of the Garden for the June 29 date yesterday. Rain kept Commissioners Wear and Muldoon at home, but the aged Muldoon quickly assented when reached by telephone.

Last week, after three hours debate, the commission approved Dempsey's request to switch from June 1 to June 8.

Phillies Release Cliff Heathcote

Philadelphia, April 13.—The Phillies of the National Baseball League yesterday evening announced the unconditional release of Cliff Heathcote, veteran outfielder.

Heathcote came to the Phillies last season and for a time acted as understudy to First Baseman Don Hurst. Previously he was with the Chicago Cubs and the St. Louis Cardinals.

RAINVILLE GAINS QUARTER-FINALS

Pinehurst, N.C., April 13.—Seven of the seeded players and Marcel Rainville, Canadian Davis Cup star, moved into the quarter-finals of the north and south tennis tournament here.

Play got under way in the men's doubles and mixed doubles with the favorites advancing with ease.

Clifford Sutter, New Orleans, seeded No. 1, advanced with a 6-0, 9-7 victory over Elmer Griffin of the University of North Carolina, while Rainville turned back Charles Harris, Palm Beach, Fla., Duke University freshman.

Sutter and Rainville met to-day. In other quarter-final matches, Lester Stoeffen, Los Angeles, played J. Gilbert Hall, Orange, N.J.; Frank X. Shields, New York, met Bryan Grant, Atlanta, and Gregory Mangain, Newark, N.J., played George M. Lott Jr., Chicago.

Joe Cronin Leads His Washington Club to Impressive Win Over Athletics

The grand pageant of baseball has begun its six-months' parade through America, attended by crowds only slightly smaller than those of a year ago and very unpleasant weather to account for the decrease.

Nearly 100,000 fans, ranging from the President of the United States down to the humble holders of bleacher tickets, saw the five major league getaway yesterday and the displays of fine pitching that went with them. Rainy, cold weather, winding up in a freak April snowstorm, forced the postponement of three games along the eastern seaboard that were expected to attract more than 70,000.

President Roosevelt, assuming his new role as United States first fan, was one of the 24,000 who saw Washington Senators under the new management of Joe Cronin give their first demonstration of their threats to the American League supremacy of the New York Yankees by setting down a makeshift team of Philadelphia Athletics 4 to 1.

THIRTEEN-INNING BATTLE

Two four-hit pitching performances, a five-hit job and one brilliant thirteen-inning mound duel turned up in the western sectors of the two major leagues.

Only 19,000 fans were on hand at Detroit where Clint Brown and Tommy Bridges battled on the hill for four extra innings before an error turned the tide and gave the Cleveland Indians a 4 to 1 triumph.

Lonnie Warneke, young ace of the National League hurlers last season, was the five-hit hurler as he started Chicago Cubs along the right road toward their second championship in the elder circuit by shutting out St. Louis Cardinals, 3 to 0.

Pittsburgh's Pirates got the benefit of another four-hit twirling job with Bill Swift doing the elbowing, and defeated Cincinnati Reds 4 to 1.

Eddie Durham and Joe Heving combined for the second four-hit game, and with the aid of Red Kress and Al Simmons gave Chicago White Sox a 4 to 2 victory over St. Louis Browns.

AMERICAN LEAGUE

Washington, April 13.—Washington Senators yesterday took the presence of Presiden Roosevelt as a good luck omen, and scored a 4 to 1 victory over Philadelphia Athletes, before 24,000 fans.

Youthful Joe Cronin, starting his first game as manager of the Senators, banged out three singles in four attempts, to lead the Washington attack, which prospered behind the six-hit pitching of Al Crowder and the hitless hurling of Alphonse Thomas during the last two innings.

Philadelphia	1	6	1
Washington	4	9	1

Batteries: Freitas, Classet and Cochrane; Crowder, A. Thomas and Sewell.

St. Louis, April 13.—Durham and Heving allowed St. Louis Browns only four hits, and Chicago White Sox won the opening game of the season, yesterday, 4 to 2. Ralph Kress drove in three runs for Chicago. The other Sox run was a homer by Al Simmons in the fourth. The attendance was only 4,500, despite almost ideal weather and the attraction of beer.

Chicago	4	8	2
St. Louis	2	4	1

Batteries: Durham, Heving and Berry; Hadley, Gray and Ferrell.

Detroit, April 13.—A costly outfield error and three singles in the thirteenth inning broke up a sparkling pitchers' duel between Tommy Bridges, of the Tigers, and Clint Brown, of the Indians, yesterday, and enabled Cleveland to win an overtime season opener, 4 to 1.

Bridges had allowed the Indians only four hits and the score was 1 to 1, when Gerald Walker dropped Cissell's fly in the thirteenth with one out. Vosmik lined out and Morgan was purposely passed. Then Kamm, Spencer and Brown singled to break up the ball game. Jo-Jo White doubled as a pinch hitter for the Tigers, Detroit's seventh hit, but died on base.

New York-Boston, postponed.

NATIONAL LEAGUE

Chicago, April 13.—Lonnie Warneke muffled the big St. Louis Cardinal guns with a great four-hit pitching performance yesterday, to send the Cubs off on their National League uennant campaign with a shutout victory, 3 to 0.

A four-hit barrage off Dizzy Dean in the second inning, opened by young Frank Demaree, gave the Cubs all their runs, as the crowd of 25,000 quaffed beer and cheered. Warneke clicked impressively and it was all the Cubs needed, although they nicked Dean and

SAVOLDI HAS BEEN SIGNED BY CANADIAN

Former Notre Dame Football Star Will Wrestle For Jack Corcoran, Toronto

"Jumping Joe" Rumored to Have Received $100,000; Recently Defeated Londos

Chicago, April 13. — "Jumping Joe" Savoldi, who tossed pigskins for the Notre Dame football team before he entered the mat game, will toss wrestlers, or otherwise, under the direction of Jack Corcoran, Toronto, for the next three years.

While the contract price was not immediately announced, the figure of $100,000 was heard in unofficial circles. Such a price it was believed, would make the former grid-star the highest price attraction in present-day grappling.

The move sending the recent winner over Jim Londos to Toronto's Queensbury's club was concluded late in the afternoon by Percy Gardiner, grain broker and sportsman of the Ontario capital, who acted with Corcoran.

Los Angeles, April 13.—Jim Londos, claimant to the world heavyweight wrestling title, defeated Ray Steele in an exhibition match yesterday evening at the Olympic Auditorium.

Londos won two out of three falls, capturing the first fall in forty-five minutes, three seconds, with a body slam, and the third fall in nine minutes, fifteen seconds with a similar hold. Steele took the second fall in forty-four minutes, twenty seconds, with a reverse headlock.

Portland, Ore., April 13.—Ira Dern, Salt Lake City, defeated Bob Kruse, Portland, Ore., two falls out of three in the main event of yesterday evening's wrestling card here. Dern weighed 210; Kruse 211.

Bellingham, April 13.—Gus Johnson, Rockford, Ill., middleweight, defeated Bunny Martin, Tulsa, Okla., in the main event of yesterday evening's wrestling show, taking two straight falls.

Dutch Osborne, local welterweight, won two falls out of three, to win over "Curly" Lonetti, Vancouver, B.C.

The betting yesterday saw Dastur installed as favorite at five to one, Galdenis was seventeen to two; Pommane and Colorado Kid, 100 to eight; Venture 100 to seven, Totaig, Epicure, Unlikely and Short Hand 10 to six, and Leicester Lane twenty to one.

the score. However, the Ribbons, despite their lack of experience, were very aggressive and never relented. They hounded Raymond especially when the Jacks were short passing in Victoria's half trying to send an uncovered man through for a shot under the basket.

* * *

The Ribbons were guilty of a little "squawking" on the floor, and on one occasion forgot to play the whistle. They believed a foul had been committed and waited for the whistle to blow. The Jacks carried on the play and went in and scored a basket.

* * *

The second game to-morrow night should be a whirlwind, as both teams will be wise to each other, and there should be no signs of nervousness. The Jacks are to-day going over the Ribbons' play and trying to find a way of breaking up the strong Victoria defence.

* * *

And don't count these Jacks out too soon. They have the reputation of being uncanny shots, as was proved in the number of free throws they converted yesterday evening. They are cool customers and they know their basketball.

* * *

But just the same the Ribbons look as though they will make fine champions. They are a credit to the city, their first five men being native sons and six-footers. They are strong, fast, clean and courageous.

* * *

Which ever team wins the series will make a worthy representative of western Canada against the best eastern Canada can offer in the finals for the Canadian championship.

* * *

Alright, Mr. Referee, everyone is waiting for your whistle turning the two teams loose again.

* * *

The Blue Ribbons want to see the house crowded to-morrow night.

FRESHMAN DORATY IS TO-DAY TORONTO HERO

Youthful Member of Toronto Leafs Toast of City For His Brilliant Scoring Feats in Stanley Cup Hockey Series; Took Long Time to Make Good

Toronto, April 13. — Toronto's toast to-day is a fair-haired midget who stands out almost alone among the giants of a Stanley Cup series because years of toiling hockey's minor circuits taught him "inside" hockey.

They are acclaiming 126-pound Ken Doraty, Regina, as hero of the Toronto-Ranger series for the professional hockey championship of the world. That is because Leafs are in the series because of Doraty and because the hope Toronto retains of winning over New York was saved by the smallest player in the National League.

They call Doraty a rookie around the big circuit because the little fellow is in his freshman year, but no player ever jumped to the majors with as little green in his eye as the mite Al Ritchie started out with eight years ago from his ivory farm.

The Regina youth spun Boston Bruins out of the title chase after 104 minutes of overtime just last week and he has scored four goals in three games against Rangers since that history-making shot. His pair in the third game kept Leafs in the running.

STARRED FOR REGINA

Among the first stars to be developed by Ritchie, Doraty scored his first big triumph here. With the little blonde as pacemaker, Regina Pats won the Canadian junior championship in 1925 over Toronto Aura Lee. But like another great Regina junior, Sil Acaster, Doraty just was not cut out for the majors, they said.

In Acaster's case they were right. He is still away from the bright lights. And for seven long years it looked as though Doraty would finish his ice career in the minors, too. He had a brief trial with Chicago Black Hawks in 1927, but failed to impress critics.

For two seasons Doraty played in the old Canadian Professional League, first with Kitchener, then with Toronto Millionaires. He placed thirteenth among Can-Pro scorers in his first year with nineteen goals and six assists. As a Millionaire he was second, scoring twenty-six goals and assisting in five.

He played his last three seasons in the International League with Cleveland Indians, helping to win one championship and placing fourth or better in the point-making lists each spring. In 1930 he collected forty-two points, in 1931 forty-nine, and last season thirty-six.

GOOD BALL PLAYER

A good ball player, Doraty has spent several summers touring Canada and the United States with semi-pro teams. He was born at Rouleau, Sask., where baseball is as popular as hockey and where Jack Cranstoun, then a star defenceman with the Pats, first marked the lightweight as a hockey prospect.

Cranstoun, credited with "discovering" Doraty, lives here now. He is a part of the Toronto that toasts hockey's newest Rabbit McVeigh.

free shots by Fairbanks put Raymond within one point of the Ribbons, with fifteen minutes gone. Chuck Chapman broke away from under his own basket and took a pass from Muzz Patrick and flipped the ball through the hoop. Ross came back on the floor for Little. With only a few seconds remaining Fairbanks came through with another pair of free shots to make the score at half-time, Victoria 16, Raymond 15

RAYMOND TIES SCORE

Both clubs opened the second half with their starting line-ups. A minute after resumption Rolfson was awarded a free throw and the crowd protested with much booing and shouting. In the late stages of the first half the fans had taken exception to several calls of Referee Tommy Macedo, Victoria, and at half-time booed him down when he attempted to announce the score. After holding up play for over a minute Macedo ordered Rolfson to take his shot and he converted to deadlock the score at 16 to 16. Blue Ribbons then displayed their real fighting spirit and forged into the lead again, Muzz Patrick coming through with a much needed two points. With Lynn Patrick having three personal fouls against him he was replaced by Craig. The latter brought the house down with a fine basket from far out. Fairbanks discounted this by sneaking in to pick off a rebound and score. At this stage Raymond lost Nilsson who went off with four personals. He was replaced by Albert Hague. Craig dropped through a free throw to put Victoria in the lead 21 to 18, after six minutes of the second half had ticked away.

ROSS GETS PAIR

At this point two of the smartest baskets of the game were seen, Ross dashing down the floor from his guard position to find the hoop from yards out. Raymond called time out in an effort to halt the offensive thrusts of the Ribbons. After missing two free throws Muzz Patrick grabbed off another field basket lifting the ball over the rim with one hand. Kirkham got one from in close and scored the free shot awarded for blocking by Ross. Craig boosted the Victoria total with a free throw. Little came back on the floor for Ross. Art Chapman leaped into the air to pick off a rebound and score his first basket of the game, making the score 29 to 21 with fourteen minutes gone. A close-in shot by Kirkham and a long one by Fairbanks gave the Union Jacks four points and put them within striking distance again. Muzz Patrick tossed in a free shot to make the board read 30 to 24 in Victoria's favor. Hague added another point for Raymond and at this stage the Ribbons lost Lynn Patrick on four personals. He was replaced by Craig. Rolfson dropped in a free throw but Craig duplicated the effort at the other end of the floor. Ross injured his knee and limped off the floor, Little taking his place. With five minutes to go Chuck Chapman looped one of his long ones from near centre and the crowd cheered madly. Rolfson offset this with a beautiful one-handed effort from the sideline. With the timekeeper holding the gun ready to signal time Muzz Patrick tore in fast, eluded his check and scored the final points of the game, leaving the Ribbons on the long end of a 35 to 28 count.

Young Fitzsimmons Guilty of Assault

Paterson, N.J., April 13. — "Young Bob" Fitzsimmons, son of the late one-time world champion and himself a retired heavyweight boxer, was fined $200 and given a suspended sentence of three months in county jail yesterday on a charge of assault and battery. Frankie Genaro, former flyweight champion, arrested on a similar charge, was acquitted.

Milton Whitbeck, Little Falls, testified Fitzsimmons and Genaro came on to the Whitbeck home adjoining their own property, that Fitzsimmons hit Whitbeck and Genaro struck Mrs. Whitbeck because Whitbeck had criticized the house the two men were building.

Wheat Given Boost At Winnipeg To-day By Rise In Pound

Canadian Press

Winnipeg, April 13.—A rise in the value of the pound sterling at New York induced a two-cent boost in wheat values at Chicago which accounted for some short covering on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange and a little export business in Canadian wheat of which no estimate was available. Wheat futures prices firmed on the market here and closed the pre-holiday session ½ higher in all options.

May closed at 52¾; July at 53⅞ and October at 55¾.

The market was moderately active throughout most of the session and volume of trade was appreciable. Liverpool quotations were practically unchanged at the close. Buenos Aires is on holiday until Monday. United States markets, in conjunction with those in Canada, will observe Good Friday only and will resume trading operations Saturday.

Statistics on the week's export from surplus countries show 2,709,000 bushels cleared from Australia, 96,000 bushels from Russia and 2,790,000 bushels from the Argentine.

These clearances indicate a drop of 1,500,000 bushels from last week's total shipment and since Canadian clearances are expected to be light again, a further drop in ocean passage supplies is anticipated.

No change was reported by traders in the cash wheat market. Demand is fairly good for the top grades but sales are restricted by light offerings. In the cash coarse grains markets some improvement was noted in domestic demand for oats, but offerings were fairly held and sales were light.

FALSE ECONOMY

Why do so many men of high standing in professional, business and financial callings appoint a trust company to act as Executor of their estates? Because they know that it is false economy to try to save executors' fees by appointing a friend or a member of the family to this responsible position.

They know that in their own businesses they would never save money by replacing experienced department heads with inexperienced men, and they know that the mistakes of an inexperienced executor may cost an estate large sums of money.

METAL AND OIL UP AT TORONTO

Canadian Press

Toronto, April 13.—The base metal and the oil shares pulled the Toronto stock market out of the rut to-day and the whole board moved along to an active and strong close.

Nickel, International Pete and Canada Malting made new high marks for the year.

Imperial Oil and International Pete obtained support from New York buying and Imperial gained ⅛ and Pete nearly a full point to 12⅞. Trade in both was the biggest of the year so far.

Minor recessions appeared in British Columbia Packers and Alberta Pacific Grain Common. In beverages, Walker shares were off and Honey Dew up 1. Implement stocks stiffened in Cockshutt Plow and Massey Harris and in the banking group the only price revision was a gain of a point for Imperial.

Nickel featured metals with an advance to 11.45, up 50. And Smelters moved up to 70, gaining nearly a point. C.P.R., Ford "A" and Brazilian were unchanged.

NICKEL HITS RECORD HIGH

Canadian Press

Montreal, April 13.—Led by International Nickel which touched a new high, Montreal Stock Exchange listings advanced to-day. While some of the leaders were off slightly before the close, the majority were well above yesterday's close.

International Nickel, after establishing a new high for the year at 11.50 eased lower at the close, finishing the day at 11.45, up 55 cents. Hollinger advanced 20 cents to 8.25.

Consolidated Smelters was again a strong feature of the trading, rising to a high for the day at 70, up 1½ points over yesterday's final price and closing at that figure.

Shawinigan showed a fractional loss in the early trading, but firmed up when the company issued a statement showing its power output for the first three months above that for the corresponding period of last year, although net earnings were reduced slightly. It closed unchanged at 11.

Alberta grain, and Royal Bank suffered fractional declines.

Steel of Canada preferred at 27 and power debentures at 41, Brazilian Traction, Canadian Pacific and a few others were all unchanged.

LONDON MARKET

London, April 13.—Strength in kaffirs featured a cheerful but quiet session of the stock exchange to-day. British funds and industrials were steady while German bonds weakened owing to realizing. The market closed steady.

Associated Press

New York, April 13.—The stock market rose sharply this afternoon following a dull morning session. Gains of one to more than three points were largely maintained into the late trading. Commodity shares were particularly active.

Rails were firm. Allied Chemical, Norfolk and Western, Home Stake Mining and American Sugar Refining rose three points or more.

Other issues advancing two to three included American Telephone, Santa Fe, Du Pont, Corn Products, International Silver and American Can. United States Steel rose 1½. Turnover approximated 1,500,000 shares.

Strong support from wheat, after a sag in early dealings, evidently gave momentum to the movement in shares.

Advances of two to three points appeared in other issues, such as Consolidated Gas, Case, Union Pacific, Western Union and United States Steel Preferred.

Issues up a point or more included United States Steel Common, Woolworth, Goodyear, International Harvester, Kroger, United States Smelting, Procter and Gamble, Liggett and Myers B, Corn Products, A. M. Buyers, Bethlehem, Chrysler, Westinghouse, United Aircraft, Dupont and others. Coppers were firm.

Weakness of the United States dollar in foreign exchange dealings gave new life to discussions of possible inflation. Foreign exchange dealers said selling of the dollar abroad seemed to represent fresh bear speculation, evidently based on the urgings of inflation by some members of Congress.

MINING SHARES ACTIVE TO-DAY

Canadian Press

Toronto, April 13.—Mining shares became quite active to-day on a rising price trend, improvement showing first in the golds. On widespread reports a revaluation of the metal is in the offing, followed this afternoon by a marking up of quotations for the nickels and coppers.

Although both Lake Shore and McIntyre advanced from 50 to 75 cents each, Pioneer featured the high-priced group with a jump to a new high record at 7.30 in heavy trading.

Another British Columbia stock, Bralorne, paced along with Pioneer, gaining 10 to 3.05, its record high point. Dome held a 50 cent gain. Hollinger was up a little and Teck-Hughes, selling ex-dividend 15 cents, improved about 8 cents, allowing for the dividend. Wright Hargreaves was also about 5 cents stronger at 4.65.

International Nickel featured the base metals with a jump to 11.55 on a heavy turnover. It closed at 11.40. Noranda showed a gain of 35 cents, Smelters sold at $70, and Falconbridge gained a few cents.

In the silvers, Castle and Mining Corporation improved. Eldorado weakened a cent or two and Pend Oreille traded at 75.

CAMPBELL HEADS CLEARING HOUSE

The annual meeting of the Victoria Clearing House Association was held on Tuesday afternoon in the Canadian Bank of Commerce Building. G. A. Campbell of the Bank of Nova Scotia was elected chairman for the coming year and P. B. Fowler of the Canadian Bank of Commerce was elected vice-chairman.

T. H. Laundy was re-elected manager and secretary of the association.

BANK CLEARINGS

Bank clearings for the week ending to-day totaled $1,202,058, showing a reduction of $138,203 from the total for the corresponding period last year, when it was $1,340,261.

Slight Gains Seen In New York Bonds

Canadian Press

New York, April 13.—The bond market rallied to-day, gains of 1 to around 3 points being recorded by a number of secondary issues. Trading activity, however, was later restricted and highest grade loans were barely steady.

Liberty 4th, 4¼s were heavily traded for a fractional advance, but other government loans were moderately irregular. Some of Theverman group, after an early slump, came back for gains of a point or more.

Among the best gainers in the utility and industrial departments were some issues of American and Foreign Power, Chile Copper, Gulf States, Steel, Goodrich, Goodyear, International Telephone, National Dairy Products, Phillips Petroleum, Texas Corporation, U.S. Rubber and Western Union.

The rails were steady, but not buoyant.

SCIENCE SENIORS DECLARE BELIEFS

Only Three Out of 218 Graduating Engineers Vote For Christianity

New York, April 13.—Students of the Columbia University School of Engineering, replying to a questionnaire issued by the 1933 Columbia Engineer, year-book of the school, overwhelmingly expressed their readiness to bear arms in defence of their country, rejected war as an instrument of national policy, favored capitalism and denied that the "world is going to hell."

The students expressed their views as follows:

Would you bear arms in defence of the United States and its constitution? Yes, 138; no, 54; perhaps, 26.

Do you believe in war as an instrument of national policy? No, 186; yes, 24; perhaps, 8.

In what fundamental social doctrine do you believe? Capitalism, 8; socialism, 50; limited capitalism, 32; nothing, 32; technocracy, 6; communism, 5; Christianity, 3; scattering, 13 (democracy, anarchism, liberalism, nihilism, Rooseveltism, syndicalism, co-operation, laissez faire, more honesty).

Is the world going to hell? No, 147; yes, 32; perhaps, 39.

The annual senior class balloting showed that the engineering students expect to be making a salary of $3,000 five years after graduation. The average senior is twenty-four years old, five feet nine inches tall and weighs 157 pounds.

Thermodynamics was voted the most valuable course of study and physical chemistry the most difficult.

Sleeping is the favorite pastime of the students and milk is their favorite drink. They consider a thirty-six-hour week the greatest need of engineering schools.

BAR SILVER

London, April 13.—Bar silver, irregular; ⅛ higher at 18d.

TIMES ARE HARD FOR ARTISTS NOW

Too Poor to Hire Cartage, They Have to Carry Works to Show on Their Shoulders

New York, April 13.—Hammer blows resounding through the fourth floor of Grand Central Palace sang staccato dirges for days when artists were less poor and occasionally could hire expressmen. The noise of carpentry was produced by artists who for the moment had given up brushes and pigments for nails and hammers in preparing their paintings for the opening of the annual exhibition of the Society of Independents.

Until this year most of the several hundred artists who exhibit in this largest of annual shows in New York hired conveyances for their paintings and sculpture, but yesterday the exhibits were conveyed to Grand Central Palace mostly under the arms or on the shoulders of their creators.

Even canvases the size of living-room rugs did not prove beyond the strength of ambitious artists, who hit upon the scheme of dismantling the stretchers and frames and rolling the canvases into neat if bulky bundles. That was the plan used by Louis C. Perstadt to convey his mural, which is nearly nine by twelve feet, having been painted on the canvas of a tent he used for camping last summer near Lake George.

According to A. S. Baylinson, secretary of the Independents, some of the artists are so hard pressed that they are paying their annual dues of $9 in instalments, and this year for the first time the society will charge a 25-cent fee on the opening night to help meet the annual deficit.

FRENCH RATES

Paris, April 13.—Three per cent Rentes, 70 francs 20 centimes; 4½ per cent Rentes, 86.40.

Exchange on London, 86.60. The dollar was quoted at 25.36.

MERITS YOUR CONFIDENCE

When coal was first discovered on Vancouver Island, over eighty years ago, British Columbia citizens found that on their very doorstep was a clean, long-burning fuel, high in heat value. The production of coal has grown to be one of British Columbia's major industries, responsible directly and indirectly, for the maintenance of 30,000 British Columbia people. Over eigh

Foolish Man Who Doesn't See That Others Gauge His Success by the Appearance of His House—Only Cure for Interfering Mother

DEAR MISS DIX—We live in a little town in which we belong to a number of orders in which we both hold offices, and both of us are popular. Now here is the trouble: My husband finds money for everything he wants, but none for giving us a decent home. We still live in the little shack in which we moved when we first came to this place. There is not a window or door in it that fits nor a modern convenience nor comfort, nor have I a whole piece of furniture. I cannot entertain as the other women do and I am ashamed to ask anybody to my house, but when I talk about giving up my offices and breaking away from the crowd my husband says I am crazy and am trying to ruin him. If we could not afford a better home, I would content myself with his, but we can. What can I do? DOWN-HEARTED.

Answer—Nothing. Unless you have the courage to go out and rent the kind of house that you know you can afford and buy the kind of furniture you need and also can afford, and then tell your husband that he can come along and live comfortably with you and pay for it, or else you will take in boarders and pay for it yourself, but that you are tired of living in a dog kennel and don't propose to do so any longer.

I knew a woman who had a husband like yours and she followed this plan, and, after throwing a few fits, the husband went along as meekly as Mary's little lamb, and was as proud as Punch of his new home and the standing it gave him in the community.

If you are afraid to try this scheme, why don't you get some of his fellow lodge members, especially those he looks up to, to kid him about the kind of house he lives in? Often a man will listen to what other men say when he turns a deaf ear to his wife's entreaties. Anyway, if you can sell him to the idea that it reflects upon him, and shows that he is less successful than other men to live in a tumbledown old house, you will move him out of Poverty Flat to Prosperity Row.

I can never understand a man not wanting to own his own home and not taking an interest in making it as comfortable and beautiful and attractive as he can. For there is no thrill greater than possessing a little bit of the good earth; there is nothing more interesting than planting trees and shrubs and flowers and watching them grow; there is nothing that gives such a sense of comfort and security as to know that your house belongs to you, that it is your castle with which you may do as you please, that it is a safe shelter against the storm and stress of the world. It gives a feeling of permanence to know that you are anchored, that you are not going to move on the first of next October or next May and that no rent collector is coming every month beating on your door.

To own your own home is the outward and visible sign of success. It is the badge of good citizenship and it brings some of the purest happiness that the human heart ever knows.

And to a woman her home means even more than it does to a man. Its four walls make her world. There her life works itself out. It is the scene of her activities. It encompasses her desires and aspirations.

Show me the woman who is interested in her home, the woman who keeps it as neat as a pin, the woman who is always trying to beautify it and make it a little prettier and more comfortable, the woman who takes a pride in her cooking and her kitchen, and I will show you a good wife and mother. The sort of woman who is a real helpmeet to her husband and who raises up children who are an honor and credit to her and the community.

But show me a woman who takes no interest in her home, who has no pride in it and who gads away from it every minute that she can, and I will show you a woman who poisons her family on bad cooking and whose children grow up into hoodlums because they are reared on the street.

It is strange but true that men do not realize how much a woman's home means to her, nor do they realize the value that a woman sets on her belongings, nor how her happiness is bound up in chairs and rugs and draperies. If they did, they would not be, as they so often are, so niggardly about buying new furniture.

* * * * * * * * *

DEAR DOROTHY DIX—I have three grown children and one of the best husbands in the world, but my home is made miserable and we are all turning into grouches by my mother, who lives with us. She makes our every minute miserable by her fault-finding and cutting remarks about everything we do and leave undone. She thinks she should dominate our entire lives and we should obey her just as if we were little children, and she is furious if we leave her at home at all or fail to take her everywhere we go. My nerves are simply worn out with the strain. What shall we do? PERPLEXED.

Answer—A family should be run for the greatest good for the greatest number, and if there is one member of it who breaks up the peace and happiness of all the rest, then he or she should be as gently and painlessly removed as possible.

If that can be done. Of course, very often this is an utter impossibility for financial reasons. In such cases the only method that can be used is intimidation. Holding the threat of throwing the firebrand out into the cold, cold world will generally work, because the individual who is willing to upset a whole household to gratify his or her love of tormenting others is invariably selfish, and anything that promises to interfere with his or her comfort will bring him or her to terms.

There are many old people, like your mother, who are petty domestic tyrants and who take out on their own families all their baffled desire to rule the world at large. They are full of conceit and feel perfectly capable of shaping the lives of those about them. They have sharp tongues and get a sadistic pleasure in making speeches that stab like a knife.

It is useless to appeal to the appreciation of these old people and tell them that since they are enforced guests in their in-laws' houses the least they can do to pay for their board and lodging is to make themselves agreeable. It is useless to tell them that since they were young all the manners and customs have changed and they are not competent to sit in judgment on what their grandchildren do. It is useless to ask them to control their tongues, because talking is the chief recreation of the old.

But it is folly, and worse, to let a cantankerous old person break up a home and warp the natures of children. Sometimes old people are just children themselves and have to be treated like children and disciplined like children and even verbally spanked. And, like children, they are all the happier for being made to behave themselves.

So screw up your courage and have a good plain talk with your mother and tell her that she is ruining your home life and that you can't and won't stand it. She will cry and accuse you of ingratitude, but the chances are that she will brace up and be pleasanter to live with. DOROTHY DIX.

* * * * * * * * *

Answer—That phrase can have many interpretations. One is being disloyal. Being treacherous. Being a fair-weather friend who makes loud protestations of affection to one's face and stabs one in the back with cruel criticisms and ridicule. Being one of the friends who feast with you in your days of prosperity, but who would not even give you a crust of bread if you were poor and hungry. Being one of the kind of friends who lead the applause when all men speak well of you, but who would be the first to fall away when people spoke ill of you.

Also, those violate friendship who tell the things that a friend tells them in confidence, or who makes public a friend's secrets. DOROTHY DIX.

Horoscope

FRIDAY, APRIL 14, 1933

This is read as a most fortunate day in planetary government. According to astrology benefic aspects rule strongly.

There is a promising sign for industry, and again workers are to find employment, it is prognosticated, with both the eastern and western coasts showing revival in manufacturing.

Farmers now seem to be well directed by the stars. Better times are to be expected as the summer advances, it is predicted.

Unusual weather may be expected in various parts of the country. In certain sections there may be drought, but many crops should be abundant, the seers foretell.

Women to-day are well directed in whatever most interests them. The stars smile on housekeeping, shopping and traveling.

Automobile trips to the exposition in Chicago are to prove of more than ordinary interest, astrologers prophesy, for the big fair is to stimulate many lines of work and to introduce a number of strange vocations.

New inventions are to prove even more startling than the radio and the improved airplanes, if the stars are rightly interpreted, and they are to open novel fields of industry.

There is a sign read as presaging many changes in population. There are to be trekks to mining camps and to distant lands from many parts of the east, it is forecast.

Many city dwellers will return to the land, astrologers prophesy, and science will aid the wresting of livings from the soil.

Advertising to-day is well directed. The stars encourage editors and publishers. New magazines are to multiply within the next few years, it is indicated.

Astrologers prognosticated the rise of labor organizations that are developed along lines not previously followed.

A special concern, it is foretold, is to be to benefit those who have had a restricted diet due to necessary economy, it is predicted.

The national capital now comes under a planetary government making for radical reforms and determined policies for the relief of all the people.

Persons whose birth it is have the augury of a year of changes in work, many pleasures and more or less romance.

Children born on this day probably will be serious and conscientious. The subjects of this sign often have much artistic talent.

James Branch Cabell, noted writer, was born on this day, 1879.

POPE REVIVES OLD RITUAL

By John Lloyd, Associated Press Correspondent

Vatican City, April 13.—A Pope carried the Blessed Sacrament for the first time since 1870 to-day from its tabernacle in the Sistine Chapel to the Pauline Chapel, to be exposed until to-morrow, Good Friday.

The ritual inaugurated the three most joyful days of Holy Week. It was one of several symbolic acts abandoned by Pope Pius' predecessors through the last sixty-three years. He is reviving them as part of the extraordinary Holy Year programme he initiated April 1.

RELIEF WORK TO BE STOPPED

Port Alberni Unable to Go Ahead Without Government Relief Money

Special to The Times

Port Alberni, April 13.—Unless relief money is forthcoming from the government before the week-end, all unemployed relief work in the city will stop on Saturday. This was decided at the city council meeting Monday evening on receipt of information from the Bank of Montreal that additional credit would not be forthcoming until the budget figures are announced. There is at present an overdraft at the bank of $7,400, and if a government cheque is received this week the city may again borrow up to the amount of this cheque and relief will be carried on as usual.

A draft agreement covering the government's share of relief for April, to the extent of $1,000, was ordered signed by the mayor and city clerk. It will be returned to the government immediately along with an urgent request for haste in returning the cheque. The position taken by the bank will be outlined to the government to show that money is required at once if relief is to go on.

Schmeling will start training May 1. The club is part of the estate of the late John Ringling, circus magnate.

Five big freighters will come to Victoria during the next ten days to lift parcels of Vancouver Island lumber for the United Kingdom, Australia and Japan, according to word received this morning by King Brothers, local shipping agents.

To-morrow the freighter Yearby is due at the Ogden Point piers. She will take 975,000 feet of lumber for the United Kingdom. This is one of the targets single lumber cargoe to be moved from Victoria in recent months, and the Yearby will be here several days. This ship was here before, having come in to take a parcel of grain from the local elevator.

On Monday the Japanese freighter Koshin Maru is due here. She will take scrap iron and lumber for Japan.

Other freighters due here shortly are the Tuscaloosa City, due on April 20 to load for the United Kingdom; the Golden Harvest, also due April 20, to load for the United Kingdom and the Golden Harvest, which is expected here April 24 to take lumber for ports in Australia.

Doolittle Gives Display in China

Shanghai, April 13.—The skill and accomplishments of United States fliers and aircraft builders thrilled a group of Nationalist Government officials to-day when Major James H. Doolittle demonstrated one of the latest types of pursuit fighting planes.

Major Doolittle, whose air exploits span a period of ten years, arrived from Canada and the United States yesterday with a 700-horsepower Curtis Hawk fighting craft.

To-day Major Doolittle staged a half-hour exhibition.

This visit to China is part of a strong effort by United States airplane makers to hold the lion's share they have in the Chinese market.

Large Silk Parcel Changes Ships Here

Quarter-million-dollar Cargo Discharged at This Port By Ss. Empress of Canada

Being Rushed to San Francisco By Fast Train to Be Put Aboard Ss. Santa Rosa

Raw silk from Japan, valued at approximately $250,000, was handled at Victoria yesterday, being transferred from the Outer Docks to the Inner Harbor for transshipment from the Orient to Seattle, en route via the Panama Canal to New York. It was one of the largest parcels of this valuable commodity to be handled at this port.

When the liner Empress of Canada was in port yesterday morning from the Far East, dock workers discharged 1,065 bales of raw silk on to the Rithet piers. It was later put aboard the Ss. Princess Charlotte and left at 4.30 o'clock in the afternoon for Seattle. There it was put aboard a fast train for San Francisco, to be loaded there to-morrow aboard the Grace liner Santa Rosa for New York City.

The silk from Victoria reached Seattle yesterday evening at 6.30 o'clock and the special silk train left the Sound city at 1.30 o'clock this morning for San Francisco. Also aboard this train were 170 bales of Japanese silk, which arrived in Seattle by the N.Y.K. motorship Hikawa Maru. The train is to-day speeding over Great Northern and Southern Pacific rails to San Francisco.

LEAVES TO-MORROW

The Santa Rosa sailed from here Monday evening and reached San Francisco yesterday morning. She is posted to clear from the Golden Gate port to-morrow at noon.

Although silk shipments are usually rushed across the continent in special trains, these shipments are being placed aboard the Santa Rosa because of cheaper water rates and because it is not now necessary for the silk to reach the eastern silk mills quite so quickly.

Together, the shipments from the Empress of Canada and the Hikawa Maru are valued at $300,000.

Both these liners also had silk parcels that were discharged at Vancouver and which to-day are speeding eastward over Canadian rails, bound for New York.

SHIPS TO DOCK AT SOUTHAMPTON

Two Miles of Additional Quays Completed at British Port on Reclaimed Land

$45,500,000 Project Carried Out By Southern Railway For Largest Vessels

New York, April 13.—Passenger ships of the United States Lines operating between Hamburg and New York will abandon the practice of taking on passengers from tenders at Cowes Roadstead, off Southampton, on their westbound trips, effective with the sailing of the Manhattan from Hamburg. Completion of new pier extensions at Southampton has enabled the four United States liners to dock and take on passengers direct, it was announced here by A. J. McCarthy, general manager of the lines.

The Southampton development, undertaken several years ago by the Southern Railway to meet the growing demands for docking space, will provide two miles of additional quays and a graving dock capable of berthing liners up to 100,000 tons. The new dock area was built on 400 acres of reclaimed land, and its completion will entail the removal by dredges and other means of 20,000,000 tons of river bed. The project will cost about $45,500,000.

Mr. McCarthy explained that the use of tenders had been especially disagreeable in bad weather and had delayed passengers' arrival on board by nearly an hour. The North German Lloyd Line recently announced that its liners Europa, Bremen and Columbus, also would use the Southampton piers, starting May 14. British flag ships that make Southampton their home port will continue their operations from pierside as at present.

Conversations are said to have been held by officials of the French Line and the Southern Railway relative to the use of Southampton by the French Line ships on their westbound trips from Havre to New York. The French ships now use Plymouth. No change is planned on the eastbound voyages, it is said. H. Ainsley Highman, passenger traffic manager of the French Line, said he had received no word of the proposal.

SHIPPING BILL VOTE DELAYED

Improbable Parliament Will Pass Measure at This Session; Temporary Act

Canadian Press

Ottawa, April 13.—It is likely the shipping bill, now before the Senate, will not be proceeded with this session, Hon. James A. Calder so informed the Senate yesterday evening, speaking in the absence of Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen, government party leader. Following his announcement the Upper House adjourned for a long Easter recess until Tuesday, April 25.

Senator Calder said it was likely another measure amending the present Shipping Act would be introduced.

This legislation now before the Senate is intended to modernize and consolidate the entire shipping law of Canada. It places Canadian ships, in whatever waters they may be, under the jurisdiction of the Parliament of Canada.

While the most assailed section of the measure is that which reserves for ships of Canadian registry the entire coastal trade of Canada, other circumstances are responsible for the delay in pressing the measure. Acute constitutional difficulties have arisen in connection with several sections of the bill and have to be settled before further progress can be made.

STORM BATTERS TREASURE SHIPS

Captain Denies That Crew Carried Arms to Fight Rival Crew Off Virginia Capes

Norfolk, Va., April 13.—Battered in a storm, the trawlers Sea Gull and Sea Rambler, representing two-thirds of the H. L. Bowdoin treasure hunting expedition, limped into port yesterday.

The Sea Gull put in at Hampton and the Sea Rambler at Moon's Shipyard here, for repairs.

The trawler Theresa and Dan, the lone craft in a rival expedition, had not reported at Norfolk yesterday evening, but she was said to have dropped anchor in Lynnhaven Roads.

All three of these craft had been to sea since Sunday hunting for treasure supposed to be on the sunken Ward Line steamer Meriden resting on the bottom of the Atlantic in 200 feet of water and sixty miles off the Virginia Capes.

Capt. A. F. Amory, of the Sea Gull, denied that his men were armed for battle with the rival treasure seekers.

Completes Maiden Trip From Europe

Vancouver, April 13.—The single-screw cargo-refrigerator-passenger Ms. Moldanger, last of three fast sister ships built especially for service to this Coast by Westfaln, Larsen and Company of Bergen, Norway, has arrived at New Westminster to Canada Shipping Company on her maiden voyage. She will shift to Vancouver later this week. Captain Bjorn Hansen, formerly master of Ms. Taranger, is her commander.

A five-day repair job on Ss. Parthenia of the Donaldson Line has been awarded to Burrard Drydock Company Limited, and the ship is now out of the water on the floating drydock. The repairs include replacement and tightening of several hundred rivets in No. 1 tank. The ship came out light, and was badly battered by heavy weather on the Atlantic and on the run up from San Francisco.

Says Gulf Seining May Ruin Industry

Varied Opinions on Amendments to Fisheries Act By New Westminster Men

Representative of Fishermen Says Monopoly of Canners Would Be Created

New Westminster, April 13. — Divergent views were expressed on recent amendments to the Fisheries Act as it effects the canned salmon industry, at a meeting of the New Westminster Board of Trade.

W. E. Maiden, representing the fishermen, declared the recent order permitting seining operations in the Gulf of Georgia and the prohibition of long transportation of fish to canneries, would not only ruin the Fraser River fishing industry, but create a monopoly of canners and throw thousands of fishermen out of employment.

R. M. Winslow, manager of the B.C. Salmon Canners division of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association in supporting the amendments, declared the canners were primarily interested in improving quality of fish so that British Columbia canned salmon would find a more ready sale in world market.

Mr. Maiden maintained that New Westminster should be vitally interested in opposing seining in the Gulf. The city, he said, would lose a revenue of several hundred thousand dollars annually through the depleted runs, depriving River gill net fishermen of their livelihoods.

Quality of British Columbia canned salmon will have to improved if the industry is to extend its export markets, Mr. Winslow declared. The canners found the quality deteriorates, although passing Government inspection, when the fish are hauled a long distance before being canned. For that reason the canners support the Order in Council providing for landing fish at a cannery within twenty-four hours of being caught.

"Japanese and Siberian salmon are fetching a higher price in the British market to-day than British Columbia sockeye," Mr. Winslow said. Those countries have improved the quality through canning the fish as fresh as possible.

NAME CAPTAINS OF TWO SHIPS

Skippers of Farmer and Beaver Well Known Here; Local Man Is First Officer

Two popular and well-known British Columbia deep-sea skippers have been given command of the first two vessels to leave Eastern Canada for the Pacific Coast, in the service of the newly-formed Vancouver-Great Lakes Intercoastal Line. These ships will call at Victoria when business offers.

Capt. A. Edgecombe has been given command of the Farmer, formerly the Canadian Farmer, of the Canadian National Steamships. She will leave Toronto for Victoria and Vancouver April 22, and will arrive here about June 1. Capt. Edgecombe is well-known here, having made a number of trips to this port in command of the Ss. Canadian Observer when that freighter was in regular service for the Canadian National between the St. Lawrence and British Columbia.

Capt. W. H. McKay will be in charge of the Beaver, formerly the Canadian Beaver. She will leave Toronto early in June for British Columbia ports. Capt. McKay is also well known here, having been the captain on the Prince liners of the Canadian National when they were in the tri-city service two years ago.
